GABLE, WIFE 'MISSING'

STATE LIBRARY OF MASSACHUSETTS BOSTON, U. S. A.

Screen Stars Missing!—Clark "Rhett" Gable and his wife, Carole Lombard, above, were believed lost in the wild, mountainous country of Lower California today, unheard of after they left ranch in their beach wagon. Though they were equipped with food and blankets, friends were frantically trying to locate them. STORY ON PAGE 3

RUMANIA SEEKING AID TO BALK NAZIS

BELGRADE, Feb. 2 (AP)—German pressure on Rumania to obtain acceptance of a sweeping plan to make her industries, petroleum production and agriculture adjuncts of the Reich's economic structure was reported by informed persons today as the meeting of the Balkan Entente opened here.

(A decision to maintain the Balkan Entente was reached today by representatives of Rumania, Turkey, Yugoslavia and Greece at the opening of the Balkan conference in Belgrade, according to a Reuter dispatch to London, International News Service reported.)

Rumania, the informants said, already has made some concessions to Germany regarding the plan, but is looking to her partners in the entente—Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia—to support her in a policy of economic neutrality which would enable her to resist encroachments which might involve her in war.

Under this policy, proposed after it was decided it was futile for Rumania to ask the other members of the entente for a military alliance, the four nations would sell supplies both to Germany and the Allies, but only to the extent of normal peacetime trade.

Other War News on Pages 24, 25

Under Germany's program, it was said, Rumania's industry would be synchronized with that of the Reich and become virtually a part of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's four-year plan for self-sufficiency.

PAY WITH MUNITIONS

Germany would liquidate a large debt to Rumania by wholesale shipments of munitions and other manufactures.

Rumanian industry would discontinue manufactures duplicating Germany's and concentrate on products Germany could use.

Rumania would keep a steady stream of oil, wheat and timber moving to the Reich—as much as could be transported.

German technicians would be sent to Rumania to improve production and accelerate shipments.

Briefly, the reported plan virt-

MINE VICTIM—With all but the superstructure of the British ship Dunbar Castle, victim of mine off the English coast, below water, the stricken vessel looms as a menace to navigation. It will be blown up. The 10,000-ton liner settled to the bottom ten minutes after striking the mine. Five were lost, 200 saved.

3 Injured, 90 Shaken When Subway Cars Collide at Park St.

Three passengers claimed injuries today and nearly 90 others were shaken up at the north entrance to Park st. subway station in a subway trolley crash.

One of those injured was Miss Edna Minahan of Monument ave., Charlestown, telephone operator at police headquarters, who was struck in the back by a seat when passengers were thrown forward by the impact.

The collision, which made thousands of store and office workers late at their posts, occurred when a three-car train from Lechmere to Lake st. on entering Park st. collided with a just-emptied Eglesston sq. trolley standing in the station.

The crash trew the Lake st. train off the rails at a point where it jammed all traffi

TANGLES ALL TRAFFIC

William A. Bushey of Kingston st., West Somerville, motorman of the Lake st. train, reported that he had a green light but that after he went through the light and was making the inside turn the emptied car loomed up ahead of him.

There were three conductors on this train—Charles T. Callahan of Washington st., Brookline, on the lead car; Henry E. Harney of Carey ave., Chelsea, on the second, and Matthew J. Harkins of Pearson ave., Somerville, on the third.

Patrick J. Reardon of Aldworth pl., Jamaica Plain, was operator in charge of the Egleston sq. trolley.

The derailment jammed all subway and surface traffic north through Scollay sq. and to Lechmere, and south and west the length of the subway and along surface lines of Beacon st. and Commonwealth ave.

Thousands of passengers alighted from cars stalled in the subway and walked along the floor of the tube until they came to the nearest station.

At Park st. station the arrival of the involuntary pedestrians, coupled with the steady flow of would-be

Japs Charge Young Violated Army Code in News Stories

TOKYO, Feb. 2 (INS)—Yakichiro Summa, spokesman for the Japanese Foreign Office, announced today that James R. Young, Far Eastern manager of International News Service, has been charged with violating Articles 99, 3 and 2 of the army criminal code in news dispatches sent after a 9000-mile tour of China.

Summa's announcement said:

"James R. Young, correspondent of International News Service, traveled to China from Nagasaki on Oct. 16.

"After visiting Shanghai and other cities, he returned to Tokyo on Jan. 6. He is charged with violating the provisions of articles 99, 3 and 2 of the army criminal code for the following offenses:

"1—Sending from Shanghai and other places to his head office in the United States and to newspapers and magazines in Japan some 38 extremely slanderous news dispatches regarding Japanese forces operating in various parts of China.

PROVIDES JAIL TERM

"2—Spreading fabrications and rumors regading actions of Japanese forces in various parts of China among Japanese and foreigners at the Imperial Hotel and other places between the 6th and 9th of January."

Summa said that the case "probably will be transferred from the home department to the Department of Justice."

Article 99 provides that anyone publishing or disseminating rumors regarding military affairs in time of war or emergency may be sentenced to a maximum of three years' imprisonment.

Articles 2 and 3 stipulate that the charges can be applied to persons not engaged in military service with reference to actions taking place outside of Japanese territory.

Summa declined to elaborate further, stating that the case is still under investigation. He disclosed he had received a number of cablegrams from newspapermen in the United States on Young's behalf, but stated that the matter was outside his jurisdiction.

JAMES R. YOUNG

Seek Full Facts In Young Arrest

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (INS)—The following statement on the arrest of James R. Young in Tokyo was issued today by Joseph V. Connolly, president of International News Service:

"Every effort is being made to determine full details of the charges made against Mr. Young by authorities in Tokyo.

"Until such details are received, the best refutation of the allegations continues to lie merely in citing Mr. Young's well-established reputation for accuracy and impartiality in his news coverage throughout a decade of service in the Far East.

"All steps are being taken to insure that Mr. Young is adequately defended when his case is brought to trial. He staked his reputation for accuracy and truth upon his dispatches and a fair judgment of the case cannot fail to result in complete exoneration."

REDS RESUME AIR ATTACKS ON FINNS

By PETER DE HEMMER GUDME

International News Service Special Correspondent

HELSINKI, Feb. 2 (INS)—Russian bombing attacks on cities in southern Finland were resumed today with Helsinki anti-aircraft batteries firing on raiding Red planes.

The first air raid alarm was sounded at noon and lasted for half an hour. No planes were seen at this period, but it was reported they were bombing towns and villages between Helsinki and Karis, to the west. Forty minutes later the Helsinki batteries went into action.

Today's air raids came soon after the Finnish high command announced that the heaviest attack yet made on the Mannerheim line was repulsed yesterday with heavy losses to the Russians.

Fierce fighting raged in Finland's "Maginot line" until darkness, it was reported. The brunt of the Soviet onslaught was said to have fallen on positions near Summa, in the middle of the Karelian isthmus.

At the same time a new general Russian offensive was launched from the Arctic region of Petsamo along the eastern battlefront to Lake Ladoga. Heavy fighting was reported at Salla and Kuhmo, as well as at Petsamo and north of Lake Ladoga.

Today the Russians still were using armored sleds in an effort to crack the Finnish defenses on the Mannerheim line. Lines of heavy tanks also advanced against the Finnish center, while light Russian tanks, sending out smoke screens, advanced against the Finnish flanks.

But the Red army troops met a withering machine gun and artillery fire which forced them to turn back. Many of the Russian tanks were destroyed by Finnish mines. At some points the fiercest type of hand-to-hand fighting developed.

Hunt Clark Gable, Carole Lombard in Wilds of Mexico

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2 (INS)—Clark Gable, the screen hero, and his beautiful wife, Carole Lombard, were reported missing "somewhere in Mexico," today.

They were believed to be camping near the Hamilton ranch, close to Ensenada, Baja California, but studio spokesman said that Otto Winkler, studio press representative, and a cameraman failed to locate them in an aerial flight over the region yesterday.

No great alarm was felt for the popular film couple, however, as Gable told studio officials that he and Carole had planned to do a little camping while on their hunting trip. They were believed to be traveling in a station wagon which Carole recently gave to Gable.

Winkler could not locate the pair when he and the cameraman flew down to the Hamilton ranch to take some pictures of them. They were not at the ranch, and Winkler learned from the Mexican ranch hands that Gable and his wife had been there but had left.

Winkler told studio officials in Hollywood that he would continue to look for Gable and Miss Lombard until he has located them.

STORM-SWEPT AREA

The area in which Gable and Miss Lombard were supposed to be has been violently storm-swept in the past two days.

Although a highway runs directly from the border station at Tia Juana to Ensenada and is fairly well populated, the surrounding country is a rough and desolate wilderness.

According to Winkler, the Gables should have been at the ranch when he arrived there, or, at least, should not have been very far away.

There was a possibility that the station wagon driven by the actor may have slipped off one of the rain-sodden clay roads, but studio officials felt that the couple had

"GREAT LITTLE GIRL, ELAINE"

JOHN (CALIBAN) AND ELAINE (ARIEL) BARRYMORE
After the Great Reconciliation Scene

ARIEL AND CALIBAN ON 2D HONEYMOON

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (INS)—Ariel and Caliban were on their second honeymoon today and according to their passionate protestations it was a case of true love.

Over in suburban Bayside, in a little private home, they were together again, John Barrymore, 58, and Elaine Barrie, 25.

And more than that, it was becoming probable that Elaine, who virtually "kidnaped" her aging hubby in a New York night-club early yesterday, would get her old part back again in John's play. She probably will replace Doris Dudley in the part of the girl who gets spanked in the play.

After last night's performance in which Barrymore made several of his now famous departures from the script, John and Elaine and their party visited another night club. But Barrymore had no eyes for the entertainment. He looked at Elaine longingly and lovingly and with such devotion that the one drink he ordered was not completely di[illegible]d of.

"GREAT LITTLE GIRL"

"I know I said I was all through with sophisticated women and living in hotel rooms and was looking around for an old fashioned girl," Barrymore admitted. "But, I've decided I still like the snappy ones, too. Great little girl, Elaine. We've had our ups and downs. Everybody has. But, she's swell."

To which Elaine assented:

"We've had our fights and maybe we will have more. But, right now, we are definitely friends."

John had no idea how long this tempestuous reconciliation in his hectic marital romp with Elaine would last.

"I don't know," he admitted. "How can anybody look into the future? But hope springs eternal in the human heart."

Since opening in his play here, Barrymore and Elaine have stood Broadway on its ear. But nothing they did to Broadway will probably approach what they did to their lawyers who are now completely confused in a mess of counter-suits

Her Suicide Fumes Kill Young Brother

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 2—A despondent young widow, taking her own life by carbon monoxide today, accidentally also caused the death of her 18-year-old brother, according to the police.

The victims were Mrs. Margaret Pierce, 33, and Donald Carlson, 18, both of Sheridan ave., West Springfield.

The woman's body was found lying on the floor of a garage, attached to the house. Her head was under the exhaust pipe of the family automobile.

The boy was found dead in bed in his room on the second floor of the home. Dr. William F. Geran, assistant medical examiner, said carbon monoxide fumes from the garage must have seeped up to the bedroom.

According to neighbors and friends, Mrs. Pierce had been despondent since the death of her husband, a year ago.

She had been practically a mother to her young brother, Donald, since he was orphaned at the age of two.

TOGETHER AGAIN—With eyes only for his "Ariel," John "Caliban" Barrymore plays host at night club to his once-estranged wife and Doris Dudley (left), who supplanted Elaine in John's Play.

Ice Floe Traps Boat at Nahant

The Coast Guard patrol boat Travis, engaged in clearing the channel of ice, ran against a floe too mighty and her bow was grounded in Lynn channel, near Nahant.

Chief Boatswain H. S. Brown, Jr., in charge, notified Coast Guard headquarters and the tug Raritan was sent to the aid of the smaller craft.

3 OVERCOME, 100 FLEE FIRE IN WORCESTER APARTMENT

WORCESTER, Feb. 2—Two elderly women and a man were carried out, unconscious, and a total of 100 persons fled for their lives as a two-alarm fire swept the Exeter apartment building in Portland st., downtown, today.

At least 20 parents and children, trapped in their apartments on the fourth and fifth floors, were taken down aerial ladders to safety.

The three overcome were Mrs. Minnie Murphy, 74; Miss Elizabeth Burns, 68, and Fuoat Haredin, 42 All were taken to Worcester City Hospital, where it was reported they will recover.

DENSE SMOKE

Dense smoke billowed from all sides of the five-story structure and hung over the city's business center as firemen fought to hold the flames from sweeping the building.

Scores of occupants, wearing only flimsy night attire, found refuge in the lobby of the Hotel Bancroft, across Portland st from the flaming structure

According to Deputy Fire Chief Fred S. Taylor, the blaze started in a rubbish pile in the basement and worked upward to the fourth floor He estimated the loss at $20,000

SOUNDS ALARM

Alexander Daniels, a taxi driver, discovered the fire when he saw smoke pouring from the main entrance of the building. He sounded an alarm from a nearby box. The second alarm was run as the first apparatus arrived, when firemen heard the cries of women and children.

A rescue squad of police and firemen ran through the smoke and searched each of the 20 apartments to make certain all occupants were aroused.

HAYWOOD S. KIRBY IN TREE PERCH

Harvard Romeo Sits in Tree Until Girl Agrees to Date

A stunt which may spread faster than goldfish gulping in collegiate circles was off to a fine start today as Harvard's freshman Romeo pronounced it the perfect remedy for thwarted lovers.

The new gag is to "run up a tree" and stay there until the girl of one's choice relents and agrees to a date.

It was tried out on Cambridge Common by Haywood Stuart Kirby of Rye, N. Y., after he had tried vainly to make a date with pretty Libby Esler of Pittsburgh, a Radcliffe freshman.

But Libby said "No."

As a matter of fact, it was all part of a "ribbing" concocted by classmates of Kirby, who wagered hi $10 he couldn't date Libby, and then called her and told her to refuse his invitation.

Kirby's comeback was to go on a tree-top sitdown strike on Cambridge Common in plain sight of Libby's dormitory window. And there he sat during the gloomy and chilly morning hours and well into the afternoon.

That was too much for Libby, however. Touched by the patience of her tree-climbing Tarzan, she relented and sent word, through Kirby's room-mate, that her company last night was his for the asking.

Blonde's Transfer In Jails Under Fire

Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman revealed today that he has completed an investigation of the transfer of Eleanor Morse, attractive blonde with many aliases, from Norfolk county house of correction to Charles st. jail.

He also asserted that the woman's transfer was made at the special request of Suffolk County's cop-dodging former sheriff, John F. Dowd.

Although the woman, known to police as a vivacious beauty with golden tresses, was convicted in Norfolk superior court on a charge of being "idle and disorderly" in Brookline, she was made the "guest" of Suffolk County at Dowd's request, records show.

WINS "PAROLE"

Her sentence was for six months, but her transfer occurred 15 days after she entered Dedham jail and her release "on parole" from the Charles st. Institution came three months later.

Commissioner Lyman said his investigation of the case was made in the course of his study of personnel, methods, expenditures and conditions at Charles st. jail under ex-Sheriff Dowd's regime.

All his findings in the Morse woman's case are now in the hands of Sheriff Frederick Sullivan, Commissioner Lyman declared.

Meanwhile, Dist. Atty. Edmund Dewing of Norfolk County asserted that he would conduct his own investigation of Norfolk County angles of the transfer in an attempt to discover why it was permitted without publicity.

Officials making the probe indicated their reports will reach the special commission investigating the pardons and paroles "scandal" in Massachusetts.

NOW MISSING

Although she has a wide circle of acquaintances in Boston, Brookline and Cambridge, Miss Morse's present whereabouts are not known, police say.

The story of her transfer came to light simultaneously with the announcement from District Attorney Foley's office that the erstwhile sheriff has been traced from New York to Mexico and back.

Only last Sunday, it was reported, Lieut. John Walkins and other officers nearly effected Dowd's arrest, in Syracuse, N. Y.

DORRIS BOWDON AND NUNNALLY JOHNSON
Movie Starlet to Wed Writer—Soon

'REEL KISS' MADE REAL BY DORRIS

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (INS)—Film Starlet Dorris Bowdon—Rosasharn, of "Grapes of Wrath"—spied an apologetic and somewhat forlorn chap among the newspapermen as she stepped from a plane in response to a matrimonial summons from Nunnally Johnson, prominent film writer.

Oddly enough, Dorris squirmed through the crowd until she reached the side of the forlorn man.

"Nunnally," she sighed.

Sure enough, just as though it was written in the script, the forlorn chap was Johnson, who yesterday phoned Dorris a proposal that she be his ever-loving wife.

"Aw, kiss her," said a reporter.

Nunnally did, but his effort brought the criticism "that's either a sister or a first-cousin kiss."

So he kissed her again, heartily.

"What do you think of him?" asked one scribe.

"Well," considered Dorris, "if I didn't like him I wouldn't be here. But I'm too excited; I don't know what to say."

So Nunnally said it for her. She will stay at his New York apartment, he said, with his daughter, Marjorie, 19, until their marriage, for which no date has been set.

Rules In-Law Woes No Basis for Divorce

Ruling that a wife's dislike for her husband's relatives is not cruelty, Suffolk Probate Court Judge John V. Mahoney refused today to grant a divorce to Robert A. Cox, insurance executive, of Commonwealth ave., Back Bay.

The judge's decision came as a victory for blonde and attractive Mrs. Claire Cox of Nonantum st., Newton, who made a dramatic court plea for a reconciliation with her estranged husband.

"I love my husband, so help me God," she testified. "I want to live with him again. I believe in marriage, not divorce.

"I gave him all my money. I mortgaged my home for him."

Cox testified that his wife was irritable and fault-finding, that she struck him and that once while carving a turkey she told him:

"I'd rather carve you than this turkey."

She hated his relatives and refused to associate with them, he told the court.

But Judge Mahoney ruled:

"A wife has a right to choose her own friends and associates.

"There's evidence to show Mrs. Cox used her own fortune of $50,000, left by her first husband, to take care of her second husband and provide him with a home and the comforts of life while he jumped continually from job to job.

"Cox, the libellant, was presented here as a nice man. But one of his letters, introduced in evidence, showed him in his true character. It contained threats against his wife. There were threats against her in other letters.

"This husband did not come into court with clean hands."

Connecticut Girl Killed in Crash

NORWALK, Ct., Feb. 2 (AP)—Miss Lillian Doan, 19, of Norwalk, was killed and two others were injured early today when an automobile in which six young people were riding and a truck collided on the Boston post road.

Wife Held in Cop Shooting

Mrs. Ethel Scott, 39, of Troy lane, Waban, is held in $1000 today for a grand jury appearance on a charge of shooting her husband, Patrolman John Scott of the Newton police force, during a quarrel last month.

The gun with which she is charged with shooting Scott, a bullet removed from his hip, and photographs of a bullethole in the bathroom door of the Scott home were shown in evidence.

Scott has maintained that he accidentally shot himself, but two brother officers testified yesterday that Mrs. Scott had told them her husband had been drinking heavily all day and had threatened to "blow her brains out" with his service gun.

They testified Mrs. Scott said she had wrestled with her husband, wrested his gun from him, and had fired through the bathroom door only to frighten him and not knowing the bullet would penetrate the door.

Rhode Island Mills Get Wage Increases

A ten per cent wage increase effective Monday has been secured for employes of the A. D. Julliard Company of Providence, and the Lymansville Mill of Lymansville, R. I., it was announced today by Joseph Sylvia, union official.

Negotiations for similar increases for employes of mills in Maine, upper New York state and eastern Massachusetts are still in progress, Sylvia said.

FAKE AMBULANCE CALL GIRL IS SOUGHT

A trap was laid today by City Hospital officials and telephone company workers to ensnare a girl whose telephone calls has sent ambulances on several bogus runs in the past few weeks.

While urgent appeals for help are being cleared by Joseph Guaragna, night supervisor, the girl called repeatedly with requests which have wasted the time and resources of the hospital's few ambulances on night duty.

If the girl is traced by one of the "phony" calls, police will be called into the case, hospital officials said.

Winthrop Resumes 5-Cent Fare Battle

Winthrop residents, offered a "grand tour" of East Boston at a saving of five cents, gave the "Noddle Island" idea a cold shoulder today as they clamored for a five-cent fare direct to Maverick sq.

"The makeshift compromise put through by the State Department of Public Utilities has more 'jokers' than a stacked deck of cards," was the consensus of opinion among the Winthrop commuters.

The Department of Public Utilities has offered commuters a five-cent fare from Winthrop to Orient Heights or a ten-cent fare direct to East Boston.

Those alighting at the first station must board a trolley for a two-and-a-half mile jaunt to Maverick square while the bus speeds along a non-stop route to the same destination.

This action supplants a previous charge of ten cents straight for transportation on the buses of the Saugus Transit Company, but commuters contend it will have little effect as transfer at Orient Heights to save a nickel is impracticable in view of the long trolley ride.

In issuing the new rates the public utilities department administered a "slap on the wrist" to William J. Keefe, their chief engineer, for "over-zealous" action in issuing a 60-day bus permit to the Saugus company and establishing the straight dime rates.

Commissioner Richard D. Grant dissented and stuck to his charges the fare was altered after the commission voted a five-cent fare last Saturday.

FIND EMOTIONAL DISTURBANCES MAY BE CAUSE OF COMMON COLD

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (AP)—Emotional disturbances may precipitate the "common cold" in some individuals, a Chicago psychoanalyst said today.

Investigations of the relation of such disturbances to various ailments have been conducted at the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis, a non-profit making organization.

Dr. Leon J. Saul of the institute staff said the studies led to a belief that prolonged or severe frustrations of wishes for love, care or relaxation may be important factors in causing colds in some persons.

One investigation, he said, disclosed a group of nine individuals who suffered colds regularly in situations of frustration of strong, mostly unconscious demands "with more or less repressed rage."

"This observation in no way implied that all emotional states or thwarting results in colds, nor obviously that this study in any sense shows the exclusive cause," he said.

HOUSE LEADERS TO EXPUNGE 'LIES' FROM DIES RECORDS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (INS)—Convinced that documents used by Rep. Hook (D.) of Michigan, in an attack on Chairman Martin Dies of the committee investigating un-American activities, are forgeries, House leaders made plans to expunge them from the Congressional Record.

The decision was made after a hectic session during which Hook was denied unanimous consent of the House to remove his remarks because he held "mental reservations" over the authenticity of the documents which purported to link Dies with the Christian Front and Silver Shirt movements.

Hook's request met instant objection by Rep. Keefe (R.) of Wisconsin when the Michigan member declared he would not believe the documents were forgeries until he had an official opinion of the Justice Department.

"The request of the gentleman to expunge is not accompanied by any concession of untruth, and until he does that I will object," Keefe told the House.

FORCED INTO CORNER

Hook, who yesterday declared he would never apologize to the House, was forced into retreat today when Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Rayburn told him that unless he withdraw his remarks against Dies "the House will do it for you."

The Dies committee forged ahead today with its inquiry by inviting six members of Congress, a George Washington University professor and an assistant editor of the Nation before it to explain their attendance at a Jan. 9 meeting at which purportedly forged documents were discussed and the attack on Dies planned.

Those invited were Reps. Hook, Michigan; Murdock, Utah; Ramspeck, Georgia; Casey, Massachusetts; Coffee, Washington; Larrabee, Indiana, all Democrats; Prof. George Britt and James Wechsler, magazine writer.

Hook's attack was based on letters which David D. Mayne told the Dies committee he (Mayne) forged and sold for $105 to Gardner Jackson, Labor Non-Partisan League representative, and Harold Weisberg, former LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee employe. The documents were turned over to Hook at a dinner attended by six Congressmen in the home of Gardner Jackson, Jan. 9. They were inserted in the Congressional Record when the House was to consider extending the life of the committee.

Debate revealed that the documents were clums; forgeries. With the name of William Dudley Pelley deliberately mispelled by Mayne to read "Pelly." The texts of the letters were merely pasted on Silver Shirt letterheads. They were exhibited to the House by Keefe, when Hook made his request today to withdraw his remarks.

When Hook made his request Keefe demanded to know whether he had "any mental reservations." Hook appeared reluctant and admitted that he had. He claimed to have an affidavit from Mayne saying the decuments were authentic, and said that it was sworn to before Notary Public Wayne Birdsell.

REVEALED AT DINNER

Revealing he had asked Atty.-Gen. Jackson to determine whether the documents were forgeries, Hook said that when the Justice Department "reports, I'll have credit in their judgment and will present the matter to the House."

Rep. Dempsey (D.) of New Mexico, a member of the committee, shouted that the documents were "fakes," and were so declared by the justice department.

Rep. Voorhis (D.) of California, a New Deal member of the committee, also informed the House they were forgeries. He admitted he had personally paid Mayne's expenses to try to subpoena Pelley and injected a note of mystery into the proceedings by refusing to disclose who had recommended Mayne.

The Dies committee learned that the plan to discredit Dies and the committee was laid before six congressmen and a university professor at the dinner in Jackson's home.

Guests at the dinner, where plans were laid to block continuation of the Dies group, included Reps. Casey (D.) of Massachusetts, a member of the Dies committee, Coffee of Washington, Murdock of Utah, Larrabee of Indiana, Hook and Ramspeck of Georgia, Prof. George Britt of George Washington University and James Wechsler, assistant editor of the magazine, "The Nation." Ramspeck left the dinner which he learned of its purpose.

"The object of the dinner," Gardner Jackson told the committee, "was to stop the work of the committee." Today he issued a statement saying "It was my intention to do everything I fairly can to prevent" continuation of the Dies committee.

Ina Wants 'One-Day' Marriage Annulled

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Ina Ray Hutton, the "blond bombshell" leader of an all-female band, today was on the down-beat of frustrated romance as court records revealed her secret one-day marriage to a traveling salesman.

Under consideration in Rockland County Supreme Court is Ina Ray's petition for annulment of her marriage last July to Charles Doerwald, New York traveling salesman.

A rather sudden elopement was described at a secret court hearing last week. Ina Ray, the court papers said, hied off to Warrenton, Va., and was married by a Warrenton minister after a whirlwind two-weeks courtship.

All looked rosy until, as Ina Ray expressed it—"Charles suddenly thought of something—he was not sure of his divorce from his former wife."

So, as the court papers said, Ina Ray that same afternoon returned to New York and began to investigate. Annulment is asked on the grounds Doerwald's divorce from his first wife did not become final until a week after his marriage to Ina Ray.

Hauptmann Son Wins $23,500

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—A Supreme Court jury awarded Manfried Hauptmann, six-year-old son of the Lindbergh baby kidnaper, $23,500 for injuries he received when he was struck by the automobile of Cartoonist Frank Moser, May 5, 1938.

The jury also awarded $2000 to the boy's mother, Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann. Mrs. Hauptmann had asked $100,000 damages, charging Moser with negligence and contending the boy was rendered epileptic and permanently injured.

A WOMAN'S PREROGATIVE!

After she testified she loved her husband and wanted to go back to him, then testified she did not, pretty Mrs. Beryl Glidden of Jamaica Plain was denied her petition for separate support from George H. Glidden of Ashland, N. H., in Suffolk Probate Court.

Judge Frederick J. Dillon dismissed her action which she had brought on grounds of desertion, seeking custody of her son, Barry.

The attractive brunette wife, on the stand during the past week, had come close to concluding her case when she told Judge Dillon she loved Glidden and was willing to live with him again.

Just when a hearts-and-flowers happy ending seemed likely, Mrs. Glidden suddenly retracted her statement.

"I don't want to go back and live with him. I didn't understand the question," she explained.

Mrs. Glidden had testified her husband deserted her Nov. 14, 1937, when he went to Ashland to take a job as a mill executive. Glidden denied deserting his wife and said he had sought in vain to have her live with him in Ashland, even promising to build for her "a house on a hilltop."

Ocean Mercy Dash For 'Mystery' Ship

Seamen aboard several ships today sought traces of a "mystery ship" feared in grave danger 1500 miles east of Boston.

The ship, as yet unidentified, flashed a terse plea for help, then was cut off from communication with her would-be rescuers.

Whether the ship, whose call letters "FPGY" are not listed in American files, has fallen victim to a German sea raider, could not be determined Officials of Mackay radio station, where the calls were received, said the ship probably was one recently acquired by the French.

First word of her plight was expected from the American freighter Tulsa, less than 100 miles from the position given in the radio flash and reported racing to her side.

Another American ship, the freighter Exmoor, was 300 miles away and joined other ships in the mercy dash.

Meanwhile three other ships, all small American fishermen, sought assistance by radio and were assured of speedy succor by Coast Guards on coasewise patrol.

The largest, the Maris Stella, gave her position as 200 miles east southeast of Boston lightship.

The patrol boat Thetis was expected to contact the Maris Stella today and bring her to port under tow. The fisherman was thought disabled with engine truble. They are expected to reach Boston early tomorrow.

At Norfolk, Va., the trawler Marietta and Mary of Gloucester was towed from a point 50 miles off Cape Henry by the trawler Salvatore.

A third fisherman, the Sankaty Head, was being returned to New Bedford by the patrol boat Faunce. She was disabled with a broken rudder and had anchored near Nantucket Lightship until contacted by the Coast Guards.

U. S. Plans Suit Against Capone

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Justice department said today that it would press a civil suit for income taxes against Al Capone as soon as a process can be served legally on him. The suit seeks $350,000 in taxes, plus interest and penalties for the 1924-1929 period.

The department's comment was prompted by a statement by Federal Judge John P. Barnes in Chicago Wednesday that the case would be dropped unless the government was ready to go to trial by April 1.

"This case has not progressed beyond the point of filing the suit," the department said, "for the simple reason that while Capone was in the penitentiary he could not be served with a process.

"Since Capone's release from prison and until just recently he has been receiving treatment in a Baltimore hospital for a mental ailment. The government's civil suit will be handled with dispatch as soon as service of process can legally be made upon the defendant."

Quiz 100 Children In 'Black Spade' Case

More than 100 children have been questioned by Everett police in their attempt to unearth information concerning the mysterious "Black Spade" note writer who has made threats against Mayor Frank E. Lewis.

The mayor's assailant also hurled a rock through a window of the Lewis home. Police believe the threats were made either by a child or a disgruntled city employe.

Infant Recovering From 'Whitewash'

Rose Marie, two-months-old daughter of Mrs. Regina Fidalto, 25, of Chelsea st., East Boston, is reported recovering today from the effects of a dose of "whitewash" which was administered to her, police say, by a mistake of the mother.

After receiving first aid at East Boston Relief Station, the baby was entrusted to the temporary care of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Flag Salute Row Goes to Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Supreme Court was asked today to decide whether school children may refuse to salute the American flag on the ground that saluting violated their religious beliefs.

The Minersville, Pa., school board sought a review of a decision by the third federal circuit court at Philadelphia holding that a 12 year-old girl and a 10-year-old boy had a right to refuse to salute the flag at the opening of school exercises.

BRIDAL RING BITE REVEALED BY WIFE

Instead of a caress her husband gave her a headlock, said Mrs. Delia V. Murphy of Savin st., Roxbury, in Suffolk Probate Court today where she was granted a divorce from John Murphy. She charged her husband with cruelty.

He continually nagged her, even starting on their honeymoon morning, last May, when he criticized breakfast Mrs. Murphy testified. She said she had never done any cooking, but was trying to improve.

He punched her unconscious once, she said, and when she came to he was trying to bite the wedding ring from her finger.

Mrs. Gertrude J. MacGillivray, of Huntington ave., Roxbury, won a divorce after she told Judge oJhn V. Mahoney that her husband went "home to mother" on Valentine's day in 1933, when their child was stricken with scarlet fever.

She said he was afraid of catching the disease, which has left the child totally deaf. That was his valentine, she said.

Louis Moses told her he could not stand married life, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Moses, of Harvard st., Dorchester, testified. He used to stay away from home for weeks at a time and on April 30, 1936, he packed his things and left. She has not seen him since. She was granted a decree and the right to resume her maiden name, of Yassin.

Aristocrat

MEOW!—Mrs. H. E. Hawkes, Jr., of Cambridge holds "Wimaumas Magnus," imported English cat, at cat show held in Horticultural Hall.

Cats of All Kinds in Show

Common alley cats — in record-breaking numbers—today rubbed shoulders with the highbrows of catdom at the Boston Cat Show in Horticultural Hall.

Rupert Kobza, show secretary, explained housewife owners are concentrating on improving the line of their pets, so that they can make a good showing at cat shows.

The trend, he said, is toward development of the short-haired American bred domestic cat to take its place with the blue-blood feline aristocrats.

Everyone Can Be A 3-Cent Colonel

MINDEN, La., Feb. 2 (AP) — Governor Earl K. Long, engaged in a heated campaign to succeed himself, promised to make every laborer, farmer and small business man in Louisiana a colonel.

"It only costs three cents to print one of those certificates which makes you a colonel," he said in a campaign speech yesterday.

Missing Plane Lands in Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 2 (AP) — Word was received here today that a missing plane with five Americans aboard had made a forced landing at Lagoa Mangeira due to a fuel shortage.

The plane, without a radio, left Montevideo Wednesday. Pilot James W. Allen of Ithaca, N. Y., a commercial aviator on vacation, had planned to stop at Porto Alegre, Brazil, 450 miles from Montevideo. Passengers were Mrs. Don Wallace of Chicago, writer-photographer; Miss Frieda Zylstra of Chicago, photographer and daughter of Charles Zylstra, Iowa Democratic leader; Miss June Sprau of Lake Forest, Ill., a governess and Seward H. Bowers of Benton Harbor, Mich.

King George, Better, Honors Ajax Skipper

LONDON, Feb. 2 (AP)—King George VI, virtually recovered from a slight cold, today received visitors, including Sir John Reith, minister of information.

The King made Capt. C. H. L. Woodhouse of the cruiser Ajax, one of the British warships which fought the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee off the Uruguayan coast Dec. 13, a companion of the Order of the Bath.

$144,614,000 Federal Grants to Bay State

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — Massachusetts received $144,614,000 in federal grants and expenditures in the fiscal year ended last June 30, Rep. Williams (R.) of Delaware informed the House, while the government's internal revenue collections in the state amounted to $160,905,000 for the year.

Passenger Increase Prunes El Deficit

An increase in number of passengers and a decrease in revenue miles operated enabled the Boston Elevated to slash the 1939 calendar year deficit by $400,000.

In the annual report of public trustees, filed with the legislature, cost of service was shown to have exceeded receipts by $2,744,290.15, although total receipts increased $327,615.17 over 1938. A net loss of $3,140,685.94 was recorded in 1938.

The report stated that the railway has recovered to some extent from the low level of depression riding, as indicated by the fact that 27,277,648 more passengers were carried in 1939 than in the low year of 1933.

Revenue passengers carried in 1939 were 295,123,077, an increase of 3,918,060 over 1938. Revenue miles operated were 45,555,636, a decrease of 243,393 over the previous year.

Because of the lower level of riding, the constant and high level of fixed charges and the large payments for the retirement of public debt, the trustees said that the ultimate goal "of a railway system operating without a deficit is not in view for the immediate future."

The report showed a "gratifying increase" in the use of chartered buses for group outings, and bad coins in automatic passimeters were reduced from 107,501 in 1931 to 8917 in 1939, lowest figure yet.

Report West Back Of F. D. for 3d Term

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Early arrivals from the West for Monday's meeting of the Democratic National Committee reported today that strong sentiment existed in their states for renomination of President Roosevelt.

Lynn Brodrick, Kansas National Committeeman, said:

"Kansas is strong for Roosevelt and I feel the same way."

Ed A. Carroll, National Committeeman for Washington State, expressed the belief his state would "favor a third term if it were voting today," while Charles J. Vogel, new member from North Dakota, asserted:

"My state is very pro-Roosevelt, but I have no statement further than that on a third term."

The committee is slated to pick a time and place for the party's presidential nominating convention.

As the western committeemen talked of current trends, reports persisted that the convention date—many favor early August—should be selected by a subcommittee after the Republicans choose theirs Feb. 16.

Democratic Chairman James A. Farley has predicted both date and city would be decided Monday. The committee will meet only one day and then pay a courtesy call on President Roosevelt Tuesday morning.

Talk of a convention site still centered on Chicago, Philadelphia and San Francisco. The two latter cities have indicated that they would submit bids, but there was an unconfirmed report that Chicago would make no financial offer, although welcoming the convention.

Other political developments as the vanguard of the Democratic leaders trooped into Washington:

1—Official word was conveyed to the President and Farley that the Alaskan delegation to the National Convention—first to be selected—had been instructed to cast its six votes for Mr. Roosevelt, and for Farley as second choice.

2—In New Jersey, a slate of candidates for delegates pledged to a third term was filed by the State Democratic Organization of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

Paul V. McNutt, Democratic Presidential candidate, told reporters in New York that he saw no possibility of a third party. He said six Delaware delegates had been pledged to him if Mr. Roosevelt does not run.

F. D. at Hyde Park For Week-End

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Feb. 2 (INS)—President Roosevelt returned to the quiet of his Hyde Park family home today while delegated Democrats of the forty-eight states and possessions were starting for Washington at Postmaster-General Jim Farley's call to decide where and when the party will nominate a 1940 presidential candidate.

Swiss Hear Nazis Plan Big Air Drive

LUGANO, Switzerland, Feb. 2 (INS)—The newspaper Corriere del Ticino reported from Berlin today that great fleets of German bombers will attack British coasts and shipping within a few weeks and that the Reichs' air offensive will be intensified by new means of destruction as soon as weather permits. The report added that Chancellor Hitler has held important meetings with German air and naval chiefs during the past few days.

More Cold? Groundhog Says 'No', Experts 'Yes'

Well, the Groundhog came out today and he didn't see his shadow and that's supposed to mean winter's breaking but none of this had any effect on the coldly practical weatherman.

In fact, the weatherman predicted more cold weather to follow today's snow flurries, and there is little doubt that, if asked, the weatherman would say the surest sign that winter is over is when warm weather comes.

Marmota Monax—which is bluebook for Mr. Groundhog—hadn't a chance in a million to see his shadow anywhere in New England on this Candlemas Day, for the weather was generally grumpy in the area, and in fact as far west as Michigan.

Tonight's lowest temperature is expected to be near 17 degrees in this area, and tomorrow will be fair and with that same old familiar tagline—"continued cold."

not met with any trouble, but had merely "holed up" in some isolated spot until weather conditions improved, or were camping by an out-of-the-way water hole.

"I know Gable can take care of his wife and himself, too," Winkler told the studio, "so I am not alarmed, although I'll keep looking for him."

He pointed out that the station wagon had a 65-gallon gasoline capacity, and carried blankets, food and cooking equipment.

Gable and Miss Lombard left last week for the Mexican hunting trip after the screen hero, who scored a smashing success as Rhett Butler in "Gone With the Wind" had signed a new contract with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios for a seven-year period, during which his salary will total approximately $2,000,000.

Baering Down On the News

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The problem of neutrals trading with belligerents is best answered by a question: Would you do business with another man while his store was on fire?

The neutrals take all the risks like the man who buys a bear in a hollow tree.

Business going on as usual during alterations depends on the kind of improvements. There's nothing that gets more new paint than a stolen motor car.

P. S.—When you buy a moose on the hoof make the other fellow guarantee delivery.

PEACE LEAGUE DISBANDS

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—The American League for Peace and Democracy, described by the Dies committee as a "front" for the Communist Party, has been disbanded by its national board of directors.

A board resolution said the league was extinguished because "the coming of the war has created a situation in which a different program and type of organization are needed to preserve democratic rights in wartime and thereby help keep the United States out of war."

The action was taken at a meeting honoring the Rev. Dr. Harry F. Ward, head of the league since 1934.

Dr. Ward, professor of Christian ethics at Union Theological Seminary, said Committee Chairman Martin Dies and the Rev. Charles Coughlin "are urging a holy war to safeguard God," and asserted that the Dies committee report "distorted" facts concerning Communist contributions of funds to the league.

"We Americans do not need to save God," he said. "God can look after himself. But we do need to save ourselves from being involved in the disasters of war. There is an anti-Red scare on accompanied by the repression of civil rights."

The league, he said, "did not tolerate control by the Communists," nor did the Communists "desire to control the league."

Dress Designer Contest Opens

In a hunt for dress designing talent, Jordan Marsh Company, in conjunction with Good Housekeeping magazine today announced a dress designer contest open to all amateurs in this section of the country.

There are three classes of competition, junior size design, sizes 11-17; misses' size design, sizes 11-20, and women's size design, sizes 36-44.

First and second prizes, $10 and $5, will be awarded in each class and a national prize of $100 will be awarded that designer who makes the greatest contribution in the use of fabric.

Fashion editors of the Boston newspapers will judge the Jordan Marsh contest. Local winners will be announced Feb. 29. The contest closes Feb. 24.

Culpeper, Coca Cola Chairman, Dead

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (Friday) (AP)—Charles E. Culpepper, 65, president and chairman of the board of the Coca Cola Bottling Co. of New York and its subsidiaries, died at St. Luke's Hospital today after an extended illness.

Culpepper was a pioneer in the Coca Cola industry, having poined the company in Philadelphia in 1897 and later introducing the industry to New York and New Jersey. He was head of the bottling companies in Bridgeport, Ct.; Buffalo, N. Y.; and Trenton, N. J.

Nurses Training For Plane Service

Thirty-three pretty registered nurses, who possess both the required "charm and poise," are training to become stewardesses, American Airlines said today.

Each new stewardess is expected to remain in service at least a year, although airline officials report the average length of stay is three years.

State Will Probe Lynn Fire Cause

State inspectors will be asked to investigate the cause of a fire which swept the second floor of a five-story factory building in Broad st., Lynn, causing damage estimated at $2000.

Fire Chief Joseph Scanlon of Lynn said he would ask for the investigation as the cause of the blaze appeared suspicious to him.

BAD FILMS JAIL MAN; 3 APPEAL

Michael Stephan, 36, South End Sunday school teacher and Boy Scout leader, was sentenced to 18 months in the House of Correction when arraigned with three other men in Municipal Court today charged with possession of obscene motion picture films and postcards.

Breaking down as he clasped his mother in his arms he sobbed bitterly as he was led away to jail.

Chief Justice F. Delano Putnam passed sentence on Stephan, Joseph Mainelli, 36, Alexander Dilitero, both of Lubec st., East Boston, and Charles Arena, Princeton st., East Boston.

The latter three received nine-month sentences and appealed. They were held in $1500 each.

Report Awaited On Milk Price Jump

The Greater Boston milk market awaited word today from a conference at the Governor's office before taking action on a price increase already authorized for New England producers by President Roosevelt.

Lieut. Gov. Cahill planned to discuss with members of the Massachusetts Milk Control Board the plan would boost the consumer price from 13 to 14 cents on a daily delivery from Feb. 4 until May 1.

passengers from the street, jammed the platforms.

Every telephone was in use as workers already late at stores or offices attempted to inform their employers why they were late.

Occurring at 8:45, at the height of the rush hour, the jam caught many department store workers, due to be at their places when the stores opened at 9:30.

Hundreds of schoolboys and girls were caught in the tieup and were stuck at Park st. station, holding their books and bags—but not at all displeased.

Three Elevated wrecking crews were on the scene of the derailment within 20 minutes, but the tieup continued for more than an hour afterward.

Here's How Elaine Won Back Her John

By LEONARD LYONS

(Author of Broadway Medley, whose regular column appears on Page 28)

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—John Barrymore's male nurse told Elaine Barrie in Fefe's Monte Carlo at 4:15 a. m. Thursday: "We have a car, so we'll take you home."

Miss Barrie clutched her husband's arm and told the nurse:

"I have a car—so we'll take YOU home."

Miss Barrie won after the most amazing exhibition ever seen in a New York night club.

When she entered the cafe she noticed that Otto Preminger was one of Barrymore's guests and asked Otto to dance with her. He obliged, and then she escorted him back to his table, pushed Diana Barrymore from her place at John's side and told her step-daughter:

"Make room. I'm his only relative."

DIANA IN TEARS

Diana wept and pleaded for some one to rescue her father and take him out of Elaine's reach. Frank Chapman, husband of Gladys Swarthout, obliged—by taking Barrymore to the men's room.

But when they emerged Elaine was waiting at the head of the stairs.

Barrymore stopped to purchase some cigarettes, but had no money.

"I'll pay for it," Elaine stated. "I might as well pay for your cigarettes—I paid for our marriage license."

She seated him in the outer room and poured water into his drinks to weaken them. The weeping Diana asked him to take her home.

"No, I prefer to stay," said Barrymore.

"Well, it's his life."

Jack Colt, John's nephew, approached the table and spoke sharply to Elaine—who reminded him.

"I am your aunt and should be treated with respect."

"Oh, all right," Colt snapped—and kissed her brow.

"Smile," said Elaine, "when you do that."

KISS BEFORE CAMERA

Barrymore's male nurse joined their table, and the cameramen photographed them — paying no heed to the departing guests . . . the Tyrone Powers, Ernst Lubitsch, Sally Eilers, Elsa Maxwell.

Doris Dudley, who had replaced Elaine as the third child in "My Dear Children," sat at the bar and announced:

"That makes me the fourth."

"No, I'm the fourth," replied Elaine, "and there'll be no other."

In the lobby, just before they left, the cameramen asked John to pose kissing Elaine, and he agreed. An observer muttered:

"Nutty!"

"Sure, I'm nutty," shouted Barrymore, accompanying Elaine into a car. "Of course I'm nutty; I've been nutty for years.

"And, so, good night, all; may the angels lull you gently to sleep . . ."

John, Elaine on 2d Honeymoon between John and Elaine. What the reconciliation will mean to these law suits probably only a Blackstone could know.

Meanwhile, a crushed Diana Blythe Barrymore waited at the telephone hoping to hear from her famous romantic father.

Barrymore's newest protege, Doris Dudley, also had something to say—about Elaine.

"I never saw anything more crudely done," snapped Doris. About 10 o'clock Elaine came to Mr. Barrymore's dressing room and burbled incessantly how wonderful he was.

"Finally, she said, 'John, it might be embarrassing to you and to me, if we happened to meet in public. You tell me where you're going after the show and I'll go somewhere else.

"He told her," continued Doris, "and sure enough we had just sat down in the Monte Carlo night club when in walked Elaine and managed to get a table close to ours.

KISSES AND HUGS

"In no time at all, she was barging right into our party. She waited until Diana left for a dance and then she moved into her chair right next to John. She made all the overtures.

"She kept saying, 'John, dear, you're not angry, are you? You still love me? We're still friends?'

"He wouldn't answer her, but he'd kiss her and give her a bear hug. I guess that was answer enough."

Diana's part in the reunion scene approached melodramatic proportions after she observed Elaine getting her man, and unable to contain herself any longer, told Barrymore:

"Father, come home with me—now!"

But at that point, Elaine had breathed in John's ear: "I can not go on without you," and so the Great Lover stayed, and daughter Diana flounced out angrily.

Exact status of the reunion at this point was not determined. When Barrymore walked into the wings at the close of the second act of his play last night, Elaine surprisingly stood there.

John kissed her ardently, and when someone asked if it might be a farewell kiss, he replied:

"Like heck I'm kissing her farewell."

Tighter Curb For U. S. Spies

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Because any foreign spy can send transatlantic messages with a radio built from dime-store parts, Uncle Sam is increasing his precautions against use of the air for espionage.

In response to an appeal by Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the communications commission, the Senate appropriations committee recommended today that the FCC appropriation be boosted by $40,000 to build a new "monitor"

Stan Laurel Keeps Name

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2 (AP)—Illiana Laurel formally surrendered [illegible] claims to the name of Stan [illegible] sad-eyed movie comedian, in exchange for $6500.

Laurel obtained a preliminary divorce last spring, but the Russian singer sought to set aside the decree and attendant property settlement on the ground that she had been intimidated.

She failed in that attempt and presented a new property agreement to Superior Court.

Judge John Beardsley approved the agreement, together with restoration of her original name, Illiana Shuvalova.

Morris Demands Special Session

Differing with Arthur G. Rotch, state commissioner of welfare, Rep. Albert E. Morris of Everett today demanded that Gov. Saltonstall call a special session of the Legislature to save Massachusetts from the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars in social security funds."

Rotch has announced that federal authorities were willing to compromise on their ruling that all welfare workers in cities and towns be under civil service, but Morris questioned his authority and sought further assurances in action by the Legislature.

Petitions Protest Taxi 'Stagger' Plan

Despite the inauguration of the "stagger system" for Boston taxicabs without violation or "hitches," hundreds of independent drivers were reported today to be circulating protest petitions which will be filed with Governor Saltonstall.

The independent owners, disgruntled over being forced out of work one day each wek, will demand a State House investigation of the taxicab situation in Boston, it was learned, as soon as the governor returns from Florida.

Meanwhile, more briefs were filed by the independents with Judge Thomas J. Hammond of Suffolk Superior Court, in their attempt to obtain a restraining order to curb the "stagger system."

Traffic officers said there was a minimum of disorder during the first day of the new plan, although police headquarters was crowded with drivers seeking their taxicab medallions.

Under Commr. Timilty's plan to reduce the number of taxis operating in Boston, cabs allotted red medallions are banned on Mondays, yellow on Tuesdays, blue on Wednesdays, green on Thursdays and white on Fridays.

In addition to the green medallioned cabs automatically banned under the new system yesterday, several hundred drivers found themselves in a similar predicament due to failure to obtain new 1940 "set-ups"—permits bearing the drivers' photograph and license number.

By noon 200 of the procrastinating drivers lacking 1940 "set-ups" had obtained them, and perspiring clerks at police headquarters continued with the work of providing the necessary permits for a long line of cabbies still awaiting them. Under taxi regulations drivers must obtain their new yearly "set-ups" by Feb. 1.

It was estimated that the number of taxis operating was reduced by between 400 and 500 cabs due to the combination of inauguration of the new 'stagger system" and delay of drivers not affected in getting new permits.

SQUALUS TO BE SET BY JUNE

Mechanical failure rather than human error caused the sinking of the submarine Squalus, the Navy said today in a published report.

A three-man court of inquiry determined the mechanical failure was in the operating gear of the induction valve. The board recommended redesigning of the gear and installation of indicators to obviate any misreading of signals showing the valve closed.

Twenty-six lives were lost when the $5,000,000 vessel sank last May 23 off Portsmouth, N. H.

Refitting of the submarine by the Portsmouth navy yard at a cost of $1,400,000 will permit recommissioning of the ship by June, the board said.

In a review of the board's findings, Secretary Edson said the Squalus was proceeding at 16 knots under drive of its four main engines and was rigged for a full speed dive, when the open valve admitted water, flooding the main engine room.

Futile efforts of the commander, Lieut. O. F. Naquin, and his men to arrest the dive, confine the flood and take the Squalus to the surface "evidenced that discipline and morale were of the highest standard and in accordance with the best traditions of the service."

Asks Road Builders Hold Parley Here

Promising them "the time of their lives," Mayor Tobin today was attempting to convince the American Road Builders' Association now convening in Chicago to hold their next annual convention in Boston.

The mayor, who estimated their convention would bring 10,000 visitors here, spoke to members of the convention for five minutes by telephone.

Ask Senate Probe N. E. Wire-Tapping

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 2—Providence's wire-tapping case moved under the spotlight of official Washington today after Rhode Island's Democratic Senator Green called for a U. S. Senate investigation.

Green, at Washington, suggested such a probe be extended to Pennsylvania and eastern Massachusetts, but he declined to say what officials were victims of wire-tapping in those states.

Investigations have been launched by state and city officials into the wire-tapping of the homes of Mayor Thomas P. McCoy of Pawtucket and Atty.-Gen. Louis V. Jackvony.

Green blamed "agents of a New York state detective agency," and said evidence of their activity would be presented soon to a federal grand jury by U. S. Atty. J. Howard McGrath.

"These detectives have, it is reported, traveled back and forth between New York and these other places, living lavishly at hotels and in private homes while working at this business," Green told the Senate.

"Some of them are former federal employes who were discharged from the agencies for which they formerly worked. One of them has stated he was a member of the U. S. naval intelligence while he was working in Rhode Island."

POLES BARE NEW NAZI ATROCITIES

PARIS, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Polish government in exile is ping together a story of atrocities in the German-occupied rion of Poland which it says rival or surpass the most barbous treatment of a conquered people in history.

) its series of "white papers," wh are being issued periodically asure to be assembled in a book le, the Polish government deides the land that Germany ned as one of hunger, stark fear, wked churches and hospitals, nd executions.

lsays deportations of the popu- lare conducted with methodical bality.

lsimilar paper was issued last nth by the Polish envoys to Italy nd the Vatican.

Tales of atrocities and suffering also are reported from that portion of Poland which fell to Soviet Russia, but the papers deal mostly with the part held by Germany.

The Poles declare the papers contain only information which has been carefully investigated and verified, including an estimate that the Germans have executed 18,000 Poles of all classes.

At Bydgoszcz alone, the papers say, 6,000 persons had been shot down by the close of 1939, three months after Germany conquered the country.

As an example, one paper says the Bydgueczcz mayor, a Mr. Barcaszewski, was "ordered to clean the automobile of the Gestapo (German secret police) with his tongue. He protested and was odiously beaten up and later shot to death."

The paper adds that "shortly after the Germans took Bydgoszcz, 5,000 men, among them many priests, were shut up in the cavalry regiment stables in Gdanska street.

Speaking of forced mass migrations, another paper says, "recently a train carrying children expelled from the Poznan region was seen arriving at Sandomierz in Central Poland. When at a station a car was opened (it was a cattle car) 30 bodies were found of children who had died from the cold."

War Diary

153d Day

By the Associated Press

Russian forces today sought to crack Finland's Mannerheim line from behind a screen of steel-clad sledges pushed by tanks over the hard-picked snow of the Karelian Isthmus front.

But even these new tactics, unveiled as a surprise after six hours of old-fashioned artillery pounding of the Finnish defenses, were said by the Finns to be of no avail.

Continued fighting was Soviet Russia's only answer to yesterday's offer by Finland's President, Kyosti Kallio, of "an honorable peace."

While the fighting lasted through the night, Finns said their lines held while their own artillerymen silenced 15 Russian batteries and created havoc among the invading columns.

Russia's invasion drew the following pronouncement from the famed woodchopper of Doorn—former Kaiser Wilhelm:

"The belligerents (Germany, France and Great Britain) should stop fighting and join their forces to help the Finns. They should fight in one line to rid the world and civilization of Bolshevism."

Wilhelm's rare comment was made public by Poultney Bigelow, his American biographer, from a letter mailed to Bigelow Jan. 16.

Keeping their own peace was the problem before the Balkan entente conference opening today in Belgrade at a time when southeastern Europe is being wooed by the belligerents for valuable supplies.

KAISER ASKS FOES JOIN WAR ON REDS

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (INS)—Recent events in Europe have convinced former Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany that the western belligerents should make peace and join forces in a drive to smash Bolshevism, it was revealed today by Poultney Bigelow, his intimate friend and biographer in America.

The heroic stand of the Finns against the Russians has given impetus to a universal desire for peace, the former German Emperor wrote Bigelow.

The significant belief of the former Kaiser, sharply at odds with the views of Adolf Hitler, who has forged a treaty of friendship with Russia, were contained in a letter mailed from Wilhelm's home in exile at Doorn, Holland, last Jan. 16. The letter was received uncensored, the 85-year-old Bigelow declared.

KAISER'S LETTER

Bigelow made public the following brief excerpt from the former Kaiser's letter:

"The magnificent stand of the Finns has smashed the nimbus of Bolshevism and set people thinking—with the result that the wish for peace is gaining ground.

"The belligerents should stop fighting and join forces to help the Finns. They should fight in one line to rid the world and civilization of Bolshevism."

Informed that General von Dommes, representative of the former Kaiser in Berlin, doubted that Wilhelm penned the revealed excerpt, Bigelow, through a spokesman, declined comment.

Bigelow declined to state whether or not Wilhelm in his letter had expressed his views on Chancellor Hitler.

Bigelow made public the Kaiser's words on the eve of his departure tomorrow for Italy on the Conte di Savoia. The bearded historian said he plans to have a chat with Premier Mussolini in Rome and go from there to Weisbaden, Germany, for the baths.

2-Pound Bomb Most Deadly Air Weapon

By ROBERT G. NIXON

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Feb. 2 (INS)—The most dreaded weapon of an aerial blitzkrieg against Europe's capitals today is a slender, innocent-appearing metal tube, weighing scarcely more than two pounds.

The bomb, for such it is, is one of the war's latest and most potentially murderous developments for attack on civilian non-combatants.

Simplicity itself, it is a bright hollow sliver of magnesium, encasing not explosives but finely ground magnesium and iron. Technically, it is known as the "thermite" or incendiary bomb.

CARRY 2000 BOMBS

Scattered by raiders from a great height over London's densely populated 700-square-mile-area — or over Berlin or Paris or any other large city—these deadly, silently-falling missiles might cause more havoc than all the tons of 500-kilo high explosives bombs an invading air armada might be able to unleash, military experts agree.

For each one is capable of starting a fire which burns so intensely that it might turn an entire city into roaring flames.

Dropped in droves over a city, hundreds, even thousands, of fires might be started within a few minutes.

Neutral observers believe it has been one of the real major factors that thus far have prevented any of the major warring powers from unleashing their bombers on the others' civilian centers.

For the nation that starts the bombing faces the certainty of instant retaliation from an air force of almost equal size—against its own cities.

WEAPON OF HORROR

Some conception of the devastation that might be wrought can be gleaned from the fact that a medium sized bomber—just one bomber—can carry 2000 of these small incendiary bombs.

Their deadly effectiveness already has been demonstrated to some extent in the Russian air raids on Helsinki, and other Finnish cities. Roaring fires were started that burned uncontrolled for days.

The missile is heavy enough, falling from a great height, to crash through roofs and start fires within dwellings and buildings.

It burns with an intense white flame, constantly throwing off molten metal. Anything inflammable within from five to eight feet will catch fire from the generated heat.

It is conceded to be the real horror weapon of the war to date.

Paris Council Asks Food Rationing

PARIS, Feb. 2 (AP)—The council-general of the Department of the Seine, governing body for the city of Paris, today asked the government to follow the British example and issue food ration cards for Paris and its suburbs as soon as possible, especially sugar, coffee, oil and soap.

The newspaper L'Intransigeant said there was a growing popular demand for rationing in order to prevent price increases and insure equitable distribution.

Balkan Partners In Peace Parley

ually would freeze out Britain and France from Rumania and involve a written or implied German guarantee of Rumania's frontiers.

Rumania's main fear of this program was said to be that by becoming Germany's economic ally she would be inviting attack by Britain and France and possibly become the war's main battlefield.

FEAR NAZI THRUST

Conversely, Rumania was said equally to fear a German thrust should she balk at Germany's determination to get needed supplies and to have scant confidence in British-French guarantees of help because of her distance from them and Poland's fate.

Thus she wants to follow a middle course with her entente partners.

The main argument of Rumanian Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu is that the situation of the other entente nations is analogues to Rumania's, and greater safety for all lies in close collaboration and economic as well as political neutrality.

While Yugoslavia apparently is disposed to go along with such a policy, Greece and Turkey are farther from Germany and, more closely tied with the Allies, would face difficulties in upsetting trade gains they have made with the Allies since the outbreak of war.

On the other hand, Turkey is regarded as the only entente that might be willing to go to war for Rumania if she were attacked by Germany or Russia.

Britain Ready to Cut Exports to Rumania

LONDON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Great Britain was reliably reported today to be planning to cut export of goods to Rumania as a weapon in her struggle with Germany for Rumanian oil—prized war fuel.

Britain, it was said, is planning to permit export of goods Rumania needs only to the extent that Rumania sends oil to Britain.

At the same time it was reported that British officials were more optimistic about early clarification and settlement of the uncertain Rumanian economic policy.

Fears that Germany was gaining the upper hand over Rumanian economic policy, especially regarding oil, led the British to slow exports of materials from here. Resumption was expected to be gradual, depending upon the future division of oil supplies among Germany and the western allies.

Bombay Arrests 7 For Enemy Activity

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 2 (AP)—Seven Europeans, including three women, two of them German, were arrested by Bombay police today on charges of unlawful communication with Germany. This followed seizure of a packet of letters aboard the Italian liner Victoria by police and customs officials.

THE AMERICAN STATE DEPARTMENT, according to International News Service, has "taken under advisement" a proposal by Vilhjalmur Stefansson, famed Arctic explorer, that the United States extend the Monroe Doctrine to include Iceland.

The New Dealers in control of the State Department are naturally intrigued by such a proposition.

It would involve the United States in much new trouble and many new difficulties to meddle in the affairs of this Danish-owned, and thus EUROPEAN property.

But why stop with Iceland?

Why not extend the Monroe Doctrine to the Azores, Madeira, Bermuda, and any place else where an aeroplane might stop and which could, through our meddling interference, invite trouble and involve us in difficulties?

Surely the opportunities for getting into trouble are not limited to little Iceland, but abound in many other places where the New Deal has not yet meddled.

Mr. Stefansson is indeed a great discoverer.

He has discovered trouble where even the New Deal had not thought to look for it, and has thus out-New Dealed the New Deal.

UNRULY CHILDREN, says Dr. Max Minot Peet of the University of Michigan, may have a better chance for long life than those of obedient, sunny dispositions.

The latter, this authority pointed out in an address recently to the American College of Surgeons, may be suffering from tumors of the pituitary gland, which may bring blindness or death.

Also, Dr. Peet added, "child prodigies may result from cancer of the pineal gland."

"May" implies doubt, and we are glad that it was used in this case. To cause parents to believe that exceptionally brilliant children are not healthy would be harmful and wrong.

History offers convincing evidence that child prodigies live as long as their less gifted brothers and sisters.

It is true that Mozart, who arranged minuets before he was four; Chopin, who played a concerto in public at the age of nine, and Mendelssohn, who began to compose systematically at ten, all died in their late thirties.

But it is also true that Beethoven, who gave public recitals at eight and wrote scholarly works at ten, lived to be fifty-nine.

And Michelangelo, whose genius was apparent at five, continued to paint and sculpture until the ripe age of eighty-nine!

One might attach additional significance to the fact that few, if any, of these men, distinguished in childhood for rare precociousness, died of cancer.

IT'S GROUND-HOG DAY, and if the famed prognosticator of cold weather's duration sees his shadow, we are supposed to expect at least six weeks more of winter.

But if he succeeds in making the trip between the hole, where he has been sleeping peacefully for nine weeks, to a stream for a sip of water without observing his shadow, all will be well, crops will be abundant, and temperatures mild.

MR. WOODCHUCK
Will He See Shadow?

Of course, this is superstition, but it is nonetheless one of civilization's oldest beliefs.

Despite their deep religious convictions, pioneer New England settlers held tenaciously to the ground-hog, or woodchuck, theory and were thoroughly convinced that the Lord had given them this as a sign to warn the faithful of the coming events of Spring.

The belief had been bequeathed to the Puritans by earlier generations in Europe, where it had been cherished by the Crusaders, who in turn had received it from the Saracens.

Different countries attribute the power of prophecy to different animals. It is a wolf or bear in Central Europe, an otter in parts of England and Ireland and other hibernating quadrupeds elsewhere. But otherwise the superstition is essentially the same.

Doubting Thomases will not place too much faith in the ground-hog's behavior. They will point out that this furred prophet has been far off the track many times in the past, notably in 1888 when everything seemed lovely on February 2, only to be followed on March 12 by the worst blizzard on record.

But the rest of us will not be so skeptical. Aware of the freezing temperatures in the Southland, we can always tell ourselves that Mr. Woodchuck left our better New England climate, weeks ago, and went to Florida with the snow.

The Bluebird

SPEECHLESS we stood in love's sweet ecstasy . . . deep in the wood, nor did there seem to be . . . words that in faintest measure could express . . . our perfect rapture, sublime happiness.

A brooklet softly murmuring near by . . . to phrase our new experience seemed to try . . . The setting sun, its rays like flaming swords . . . attempted vainly to supply the words.

And then a bluebird gay, the trees among . . . told the whole story in a fluted song.

March of Events -:- By BENJAMIN DeCASSERES

SECRETARY HULL is strong for "Reciprocal Trade Agreements" between the nations of the earth and the United States.

Well, why then shouldn't our State Department insist on something more important—reciprocal civil liberties agreements? I mean!

Suppose American papers and magazines advocating the capitalistic system were suddenly to appear in the streets of Russian cities?

Suppose some one was to establish a daily newspaper in Moscow called "The American Worker?"

SECRETARY HULL
"Strong for Agreements"

SUPPOSE we established a propagandist American bureau in Moscow on the lines of Soviet Bureaus here?

Suppose we "indoctrinated" our American capitalistic individualistic principles in Russia's public schools?

Suppose we financed American lobbies in her Soviet Congress?

Suppose we chiselled into her army, her navy, her factories and right into the offices of the commissars?

Suppose we let loose a raft of soapbox orators on Russia whose sole business would be to praise America and deride the sickle-and-hammer?

Suppose sympathizers with American democratic-capitalism were to parade the streets of Leningrad and Moscow shouting: "DOWN WITH SOVIETISM!"

Suppose the admirers of political individualism and of America were to establish a national party in Russia and demand that their revolutionary program should go on the ballot under the picture of Jefferson?

Until we are allowed the same liberties of speech and propaganda in Russia that we allow Russians and their Benedict Arnolds in America we should withdraw all recognition of the Russian government.

No country or its sympathizers should be allowed to do here what we would not be allowed to do over there.

That's what I mean by reciprocity of civil liberties.

DID Eddy de Vere write "Romeo and Juliet," "Hamlet," "Othello" and the rest of the Shakespearean plays? Charles W. Barrell in an article I've been reading in the "Scientific American" says he did. Mr. Barrell has had the X-ray on three famous paintings of Shakespeare and says he has discovered the seal, coat-of-arms and other appurtenances of the de Vere family. Therefore, the conclusion that Edward de Vere, the 17th Earl of Oxford (1550-1604), wrote the plays.

Now it happens that "Macbeth," "King Lear," "Antony and Cleopatra," "The Winter's Tale," "The Tempest" and other plays were written after Eddy de Vere's death.

Edward de Vere wrote some good lyrical verse in his time, schemed to murder Sir Philip Sidney and (get this, please) brought back from Italy in 1575 various inventions.

It may be possible that the pictures we know as Shakespeare may be the Earl of Oxford, but there is not one scrap of evidence in existence to prove that William Shakespeare did not write his plays. Where did he get his education? A genius is born educated.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Every year I think the group of young movie stars who come to the Birthday Ball parties are the nicest group that we ever had. I think back, however, and decide that all our guests have been equally as attractive, and I wish we could see them all again.

We had a nice luncheon party and toured the White House. In the evening, I met these young people again as I made my rounds of the different balls.

I VISITED two more District of Columbia institutions this morning. I think I will begin by telling you something of the second one which I saw. It is the Industrial Home for white boys and girls under 18 years of age.

It is not a model institution. The buildings are old, the personnel is not entirely adequate, but it is of higher calibre and the management is better than in many other institutions.

I happened to be there at dinner time. They are served cafeteria style, so that the food is warm and palatable. My only criticism is that the servings did not seem to me very plentiful for growing children.

Because of the fact that they have a better personnel, there is a planned program of recreation and there is a public school on the premises.

FIRST SLICE OF PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY CAKE
First Lady Joyously Holds It Aloft at Mayflower Ball

There should be, however, a new cottage type of institution on the outskirts of the city where a farm can be part of the educational program.

The other institution which I visited, is the Receiving Home for Children, where both white and colored are sent. The dormitories are crowded and inadequate, recreation space allows for no segregation, so that a little six-year-old boy spends his day with boys of 18, who may have committed some really serious offenses.

Medical examination is delayed and there is no program of recreation or education and no space for it.

Both of these institutions should be doing a real job of rehabilitation. As far as the receiving home goes, it would be impossible to do anything of that kind and I think if you visit it you will come away with a heartache.

GOVERNMENT SPURNS MERRILL PLAN

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—HARRY RICHMAN: Dick Merrill, with whom you flew back and forth across the Atlantic, has had transatlantic phone conversations with Lord Beaverbrook about training British pilots in this country. The price was all set—but then Merrill was refused government permission to do it . . . ATTY.-GEN. JACKSON: Your aide in the Solicitor General's office, Huddleston, is slated to become Frank Murphy's law secretary . . . GEN. MALIN CRAIG: For the Lincoln's Birthday weekend, delegates of the American Youth Congress are making a pilgrimage to Washington to protest against the huge army and navy defense appropriations . . . Eleanor Roosevelt has arranged for two delegates to be accommodated at the home of Sec. Woodring.

ESTELLE TAYLOR

GEORGE ABBOTT: Milton Berle, the star of your production, "See My Lawyer," isn't very happy ever since he decided to take a vacation from the play and go to Florida. In the first place, Paul Stewart, who replaced him, is doing too well at it. And then the ailing Berle was so cold while making his broadcast from Miami Beach last Saturday that he had to keep his hat and coat on all through the show . . . MACKENZIE KING: Estelle Taylor, whose father once was a cigar worker, is going to Montreal next month to make cigars for one day—for the benefit of the British Army . . . CONNIE BROUN: Clifford Odets' new play, "Night Music," will be dedicated to Heywood Broun . . . RAYMOND MASSEY: At the command performance of "Life With Father" in Washington the curtain went up four minutes earlier—because the President arrived ahead of schedule . . . There were so many Secret Service men guarding his box and the theater that Wally Fried, the stage manager, was stopped when he tried to get in . . . He managed to get by the first group of guards, but was stopped by a second group. "Who are you?" they finally asked him. "John Wilkes Booth," answered Fried . . . "Very well, Mr. Booth." He passed in.

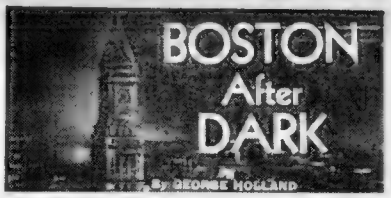
HEDY LAMARR: Greta Garbo is repeating your orange-juice order. She was at the Versailles Monday night and told the waiter: "Bring me orange juice—not strained and no ice—the way God made it" . . . THORNTON WILDER: Sol Lesser, producer of "Our Town," gave a typical New England dinner party to the Hollywood press to celebrate the start of the picture production. The menu consisted of boiled beef, boiled turkey, boiled potatoes, boiled cabbage. "This," he announced, "is the first party here where the dishes and not the guests were boiled."



EXCLUSIVE: Before he spends a great deal of money and energy in building up Pat Comiskey as the logical "Irish-American contender" for the world's championship, Mike Jacobs is hereby warned that this column has been given the truth of Pat's nativity . . . Pat is Polish-American, and not of Celtic derivation . . . Unfortunately for Mike's plans, the reliable informant who furnished us with Pat's vital statistics is not stopping at this desk without going further . . . His next visit will be one with a New York sports-writer who is syndicated . . . Ordinarily, boxing and the stage and screen can take tremendous liberties with Irish names—and nothing happens.

THE GIRLS PROBABLY CAN IDENTIFY the fingernail-shade known as "hot pink" . . . Whatever it is, "hot pink" will supplant the bleeding-heart shade now popular in nail tints . . . Another popular shade will be "watermelon" . . . Our final fashion bombshell for the day is that silk jersey will be the material in summer-wear for 1940 . . . Exclusive (I think): Dolly Stark, the National League umpire who has been a very eligible bachelor for years and years, stepped across the Maryland line early today and called himself out on strikes.

THE NEW MRS. STARK is described as beautiful . . . Her name is Jane Ames, and she is said to be a daughter of a "late film celebrity" . . . This last baffled us, as we do not recall a movie bigshot known as "Ames" . . . Anyway, removal of Dolly from the eligible list produced a bit of weeping in Boston, you may be sure . . . Off the baseball field, Umpire Stark was most companionable . . . More of a man's man, 'tis true, but very popular with both sexes.

THE COLUMN OWES TED WILLIAMS plenty of thanks . . . He made our "dope story" of yesterday morning (in which it was predicted he might wear a dinner-jacket in spite of the publicity to the contrary), come true by wearing a Tuxedo to the baseball writers' dinner at the Copley Plaza . . . The Kid's remarks on the subject of his apparel were very funny . . . "I broke into the big league in a sport shirt," young Ted began. "Then they got me wearing ties and now—(squirming his neck in protest to a stiff collar—they've got me in this" . . . The "this" meant, of course, the dinner-coat, and there was a world of expression in the way The Kid spoke the word . . . And isn't the evolution of a modern non-collegiate "busher" summed up pretty well in that succinct recital?

I WOULD RATE THE "HITS" SCORED at the baseball writers' party in this order . . . No. 1, Williams . . . No. 2, Joe Cronin . . . (Although it was close to a tie) . . . 3, Eddie Miller . . . 4, Mel Webb, the veteran baseball scribe, who misplaced his notes (and was excellent as a speaker when he finally gave up fumbling for them) . . . 5, Mayor Tobin . . . 6, Arthur Mann . . . Larry McPhail scored the biggest headline "sock" with his blast at Judge Landis . . .

STAHL WILL FILM BROUN STORY

By Louella O. Parsons

John M. Stahl

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2—One of the most surprising books of any year was "The Boy Grew Older," a novel written by the late Heywood Broun nearly ten years ago. A sophisticate, Broun told a human-interest and extremely simple tale of a man who is left alone with a boy. There are touches of humor and Broun brilliancy, but nothing of a political or socialistic nature. The story was supposed to be that of Broun's own young son of whom much was written when Haywood was the favorite columnist on the New York World.

Well, "The Boy Grew Older" is headed for the movies. It was bought by John M. Stahl, who is in New York, and will be made by him as soon as he settles his releasing arrangement. His Columbia deal did not materialize and John is now talking business with United Artists and it looks good.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

"SAY BOSS." The Boss turned slowly as he was leaving the dimly-lit room. "What is it Junkins?"

"Well you see Boss, it's like this. I've been reading in some of these magazines about things happening, sudden like, very sudden, and," Junkins paused, his pallor becoming more acute.

"Scared Junkins?"

"No Boss, you know better than that. I'm not a chicken. But you know yourself something's liable to slip, or, or a lot of things could happen."

"Well, what do you want me to do?"

"Simply this Boss. I'm an old sailor. You know that. Just see that I get the necessary materials, and I promise you that there'll be no slips, no accidents. It'll be a good clean job."

THE BOSS stood there thinking, a little taken back. Indecision was mirrored on his usually strong and determined countenance.

"Please Boss," a pleading note crept into Junkins thin voice, "you promised to do something for me."

"O. K.," the Boss replied curtly, "but no funny business and no beating me to the punch."

A short time later Junkins was eagerly tearing open a large bundle. Lovingly he fondled the contents. Then his skillful and supple fingers went to work.

All night long he labored, pausing but now and then to examine his handicraft with the expert eye of a master craftsman.

All the dexterity that he could possibly muster, he poured into those flexible fingers.

THE BOSS never knocked. He just walked in. "Finished?"

"Yep. There it is Boss. And Boss, will yuh let me know if it's O. K. Soon?"

"Yeh, I will, real soon."

Later the Boss entered the dimly-lit room.

"Junkins, that's a strong, tough, solid piece of work you've made. It's been tested and would hold a dozen men like you. Oh yes, as you've probably expected, your reprieve has been refused. You hang at noon, by your own rope as you desire."

Can you write a short story? Send it to Two-Minute Story Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston. Five dollars will be paid for the week's best story.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

NEVER MIND how old I am. I'm old enough to know that age might be mellowed wine if we would have it so.

But there's the rub—we don't have it so. At best we have only consolation prizes for age—the heavy dividends are all awarded to youth. We ourselves determine those prizes and awards. Experience doesn't come to us labeled. Life doesn't put tags on things. We humans put the tags on. Life gives us experience in a mass, as it gives us air in a mass, or water.

It doesn't say: "This is a good experience" or "This is a bad experience." It just grinds it out willy-nilly, without explanation or tabulation. Then we humans in our egotism and ignorance knowing nothing whatever of the beginnings or the endings of things, proceed to classify it.

"THIS IS HAPPY," we say—or "this is sad," "this is desirable and this is weariness to the flesh." So we go, setting values on things. Arbitrary values, man made, and always of youth. "Youth is wonderful," we say, "Youth is delightful. Youth holds all the high moments. But age is terrible. Age is weak and sad and colorless and a bore."

Of course, if you've lived at all, you have long since discovered that the valuation we've put on youth is all wrong. Youth isn't a time of ease and ecstasy. It's a lonely, confused, muddled time. Passion's a pest. Ambition's a gadfly. Pleasure gives us a tummy ache. The years between 20 and 40 make wonderful poetry but difficult and often disagreeable living.

Yet, because we have been assured so often that "youth is a wonderful time," we continue to accept that valuation even in the midst of our discouragement and disillusion.

FOR THE SAME reason as we face age, we prepare for the doldrums. they have told us that age is a barren bitterness. So we resign ourselves to be barren and bitter. They've said that life holds nothing after 50. So we don't look around to see if it's true or not.

It isn't true. The deflated valuation we've put on age is as false as the inflated valuation we've set on youth. Life does hold something after 50—it holds its rarest distillation of experience. It holds the wine of years.

'Kiss of Death' Has Jailkeepers Jittery

CROWN POINT, Ind., Feb. 2 (INS)—It was with some nervousness that officers at the county jail learned that one of their involuntary guests was Mary Margaret Collins, fearsomely known for her reputed "kiss of death."

According to legends of the Chicago underworld of former years, back when the Capone gang was flourishing, seven of Mary Margaret's swains had perished in one way or another, generally in gang warfare, after they had fallen victims to hre charms.

The "Kiss of Death" tradition failed but once, it is told, that time in the case of Sol Feldman, who was shot by the police, but somehow managed to live.

The red-haired Mary Margaret, now 36 years old and possibly minus some of the glamour of a decade ago, was arrested on the rather petty and unexciting charge of shoplifting. Three other women and a man were seized with her. Prosecutor Fred M. Staltz said the ywere members of a shoplifting gang.

This must have been something of a comedown for Mary Margaret, ona of whose first sweethearts was the redoubtable Dion O'Banion who ran gang affairs with a high hand until some fellows came into his little Chicago flower shop one night, shook hands with him and then shot him to death.

Others who died from the "Kiss of Death," or at any rate died violently, were Johnny Sheehy, Eugene (Red) McLaughlin—his body, expertly wired and weighted, was found in the Chicago drainage canal—Sam Katz, Johnny Phillips, David Bates and Irving Schlg.

Finders May Be Keepers

On the slim hope that nobody will claim a tricycle they found in North Beacon st., Watertown, two Watertown boys today eagerly awaited word from police that the cycle was theirs.

Robert Rooney of Arsenal st., and James Hurley of North Beacon st., both eight years old, pushed the vehicle more than a mile to the Watertown police station.

They explained that they realized it was the honest thing to do, but that they had become so attached to it they hoped they might get it if the owner could not be found.

Manchester Plans New Bus Survey

MANCHESTER, Feb. 2—Its trolleys doomed to be junked early in the spring, the Public Service Co. of New Hampshire today called in Boston automotive engineers to guide the establishment of bus service.

New equipment will involve an outlay of $360,000 of which $160,000 will be spent for 18 new buses, $125,000 for a garage and $75,000 for removal of the present equipment.

Mother in Grafton Adds Anti-War Plea

From her contact with veterans of the last war, Mrs. Charles Mayer of North Grafton, former president of an American Legion Auxiliary, has determined to work to spare the youth of America from the tragic consequences of warring on foreign soil, she wrote in forwarding her application to the National Legion of Mothers of America.

"I am sending my pledge card with three others, all of them mothers who have boys of an age to go to war. I myself have two boys, 15 and 18 years, and was president of the American Legion auxiliary last year.

"Mrs. Frances Garvey has one son 24 years, Mrs. Thomas Kelley a son 25 years, Mrs. Robert Thomson three sons, from 21 to 24 years. They beg you to accept their pledge cards through me."

An East Boston mother, Mrs. E. LaBella, who vividly remembers the World War, sends in her pledge to the Legion and encloses a "Prayer for Peace" written by her daughter, L. LaBella.

"This poem expresses, I think, my feelings and those of all mothers on the subject of war," Mrs. LaBella writes. "And remembering the great sacrifice of our boys in the last war, I am only too glad to send in my pledge card."

The "Prayer for Peace":

When signs of war are here and there
You can hear a mother's prayer
"Please, dear Lord, let us have peace,
For my boy is young, and, to say the least,
All mothers in this world do fear
The threat of war's cords binding near."
For we have borne and loved so well
Those boys who'll have to live in hell
For days on end and maybe years
Before they'll see us again [illegible] dears.
And at the end, when they struggle home,
Some half starved but skin and bone,
So bitter of this world they'll be
For all the horror they did see
So please dear Lord, let us have peace,
And et al, Wars in this world cease."

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1—Formal organization of the National Legion of the Mothers of America took another step forward today when Mrs. George A. Hormel of Bel Air, Cal, accepted appointment as national treasurer pro tem.

ARMY OFFICER RAPS U. S. AIR DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The army was charged by one of its own officers today with "resisting" reinforcement of the nation's air raid defenses, and with failure to develop effective weapons.

Major Thomas R. Phillips, instructor at the Command and General Staff School, asserted that the army's standard mobile three-inch anti-aircraft gun was far shorter in range than larger cannon used in the European war.

The machine guns on which the army relies for defense against low flying warplanes, he said, "are not now and never have been effective weapons" for the purpose.

"While aviation has progressed by yearly bounds, American anti-aircraft has devoted itself to refinement of the materia of 10 years ago," Phillips, an air defense specialist, wrote in the Coast Artillery Journal. "It no longer can fulfill its mission."

Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, was quoted by House military committee members earlier this week as telling the committee that a $40,000,000 expenditure, chiefly for an air-raid warning system, was of the "first priority" among army needs.

'Kiss of Death' Has Jailkeepers Jittery

CROWN POINT, Ind., Feb. 2 (INS)—It was with some nervousness that officers at the county jail learned that one of their involuntary guests was Mary Margaret Collins, fearsomely known for her reputed "kiss of death."

According to legends of the Chicago underworld of former years, back when the Capone gang was flourishing, seven of Mary Margaret's swains had perished in one way or another, generally in gang warfare, after they had fallen victims to hre charms.

The "Kiss of Death" tradition failed but once, it is told, that time in the case of Sol Feldman, who was shot by the police, but somehow managed to live.

The red-haired Mary Margaret, now 36 years old and possibly minus some of the glamour of a decade ago, was arrested on the rather petty and unexciting charge of shoplifting. Three other women and a man were seized with her. Prosecutor Fred M. Staltz said the ywere members of a shoplifting gang.

This must have been something of a comedown for Mary Margaret, ona of whose first sweethearts was the redoubtable Dion O'Banion who ran gang affairs with a high hand until some fellows came into his little Chicago flower shop one night, shook hands with him and then shot him to death.

Others who died from the "Kiss of Death," or at any rate died violently, were Johnny Sheehy, Eugene (Red) McLaughlin—his body, expertly wired and weighted, was found in the Chicago drainage canal—Sam Katz, Johnny Phillips, David Bates and Irving Schlig.

Finders May Be Keepers

On the slim hope that nobody will claim a tricycle they found in North Beacon st., Watertown, two Watertown boys today eagerly awaited word from police that the cycle was theirs.

Robert Rooney of Arsenal st., and James Hurley of North Beacon st., both eight years old, pushed the vehicle more than a mile to the Watertown police station.

They explained that they realized it was the honest thing to do, but that they had become so attached to it they hoped they might get it if the owner could not be found.

Manchester Plans New Bus Survey

MANCHESTER, Feb. 2—Its trolleys doomed to be junked early in the spring, the Public Service Co. of New Hampshire today called in Boston automotive engineers to guide the establishment of bus service.

New equipment will involve an outlay of $360,000 of which $160,000 will be spent for 18 new buses, $125,000 for a garage and $75,000 for removal of the present equipment.

Mother in Grafton Adds Anti-War Plea

From her contact with veterans of the last war, Mrs. Charles Mayer of North Grafton, former president of an American Legion Auxiliary, has determined to work to spare the youth of America from the tragic consequences of warring on foreign soil, she wrote in forwarding her application to the National Legion of Mothers of America.

"I am sending my pledge card with three others, all of them mothers who have boys of an age to go to war. I myself have two boys, 15 and 18 years, and was president of the American Legion auxiliary last year.

"Mrs. Frances Garvey has one son 24 years, Mrs. Thomas Kelley a son 25 years, Mrs. Robert Thomson three sons, from 21 to 24 years. They beg you to accept their pledge cards through me."

An East Boston mother, Mrs. E. LaBella, who vividly remembers the World War, sends in her pledge to the Legion and encloses a "Prayer for Peace" written by her daughter, L. LaBella.

"This poem expresses, I think, my feelings and those of all mothers on the subject of war," Mrs. LaBella writes. "And remembering the great sacrifice of our boys in the last war, I am only too glad to send in my pledge card."

The "Prayer for Peace":

When signs of war are here and there
You can hear a mother's prayer
"Please dear Lord, let us have peace
For my boy is young, and to say the least,
All mothers in this world do fear
The threat of war cause breaking near"
For we have borne and loved too well
These boys who I have to live in hell
For days on end and maybe years
Before they'll see us again poor dears.
And at the end when ties struggle home,
Some half-starved, but skin and bone,
So bitter of this world they'll be
For all the heartache they did see.
So please dear Lord, let us have peace
And get at wars in this world cease."

BLASTS F. D. AIDES ON CARE OF AGED

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to the Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—Mrs. Roosevelt the other day shocked the conscience of everybody in Washington who still has one by bluntly revealing what she had seen on an unheralded visit to the home for the aged and infirm—euphemism for the District of Columbia's poorhouse.

Inadequate facilities in antiquated buildings, ghastly overcrowding of unfortunates of all ages, a part-time doctor for the job of a full-time staff, a ward in which those suffering from cancer presented so terrible a spectacle that she was told not to go in.

Sad and horrible was the picture of misery she painted. One was reminded of some of the more frightful scenes from Dickens. Deplorable, she dfeclares—and will demand an investigation which should, indeed, be made—that such conditions should be the "standard for our attitude toward old age."

Mrs. Roosevelt does not attempt to pin the responsibility for these deplorable conditions where that responsibility would seem to rest.

So this writers will try to do it.

NEW DEAL STANDARD

If conditions at this "home" are as Mrs. Roosevelt describes them, and her account rings absolutely true, then the responsibility clearly rests upon the district commissioners, all of whom were appointed by President Roosevelt, and two of whom have recently been reappointed, presumably in approval of thei radministration of the district government.

If this miserable relic of medieval barbarism which Mrs. Roosevelt describes is truly the "standard of our attitude toward old age," it must be conceded that it is a New Deal standard, for the New Deal has been running the District of Columbia, along with the rest of the United States and adjacent hemispheres, for seven long years.

If the commissioners had been on the job they would have known of these conditions, and would have gone to Congress seeking a remedey.

But they didn't do it.

For the current fiscal year they asked a budget of $172,630 for the home for the aged and infirm, which Congress cut to $164,110. The hearings before the House appropriations sub-committee contain no revelation whatever of conditions such as Mrs. Roosevelt has now laid before the people of Washington.

Frank B. Haskel, superintendent of the institution, when before the committee, declared in reply to a question that many of the inmates of the "home" would rather stay down there than go on relief.

"They get more down there," said Mr. Haskell. "They need care which they would not get from old-age assistance . . . I don't think old-age assistance would give them as much as they get down there for $19 a month—they prefer to be there on account of the added care that they receive."

WHAT AN INDICTMENT

Not such a picture as Mrs. Roosevelt painted so grimly, and yet I think Mrs. Roosevelt's is the true one.

But what an indictment of the New Deal was that unconsciously given by Supt. Haskell!

Old-age assistance is one of the chief claims to New Deal Holiness, and yet Congress is told that inmates in such a place as Mrs. Roosevelt describes prefer that place to old-age assistance. Truly, it costs billions in the aggregate, but yields the individual "beneficiary" but a beggarly dole.

The district this year is spending more than $7,000,000—one-seventh of its entire budget—on public welfare, in addition to $500,000 for direct relief, $163,000 for home care of children, $597,000 for old-age assistance, $40,000 for the blind, etc., to say nothing of what it is spending on WPA.

'Met' Police Service Revealed in Report

The Metropolitan District Police recovered 27 bodies and assisted 2372 injured and sick persons, it is revaled in the annual report of Supt. Edward M. Woods released today.

Stolen property valued at $51,636 was recovered and the force performed a total of 7944 hours of extra duty at no compensation.

Spoil Triple Wedding

BROCKTON, Feb. 2—Plans for a triple wedding were disrupted today after one young couple eloped and were married at Salem, N. H.

Ray McGuire and his fiancee, Dorothy Anderson, daughter of Harold Anderson of Atherton street, are the honeymooners who decided not to wait for triple wedding rites until spring, as planned.

Ray's brother, Roy, and Mar Burke along with his sister, Rit M. McGuire and her fiance, Joh T. Bride, have revised plans for double wedding instead.

Who Invented the MOUSETRAP?

You've often heard the old adage: "Let a man make a better mousetrap, and the world will make a beaten path to his door."

But have you ever happened upon that path, or even looked for it?

Why should you, when the people who today have things to sell beat a path to your door to tell you about them?

Every newspaper that comes into your home brings you a new list of what you can get, and where. You can do your shopping in the advertising pages—instead of beating a path from store to store to find what you want.

Make it a habit to look over the advertisements, and you'll find many fine values you might have missed . . . many exciting and useful things you otherwise might never have known about!

In another era, we would have considered a proposal recently brought up in a New Jersey town as one of the greatest blows at human rights in history. This proposal was to prohibit bar standees from buying drinks for others at the bar—in short, treating.

New Jersey's state commissioner of control of alcoholic beverages, D. Frederick Burnett, obviously a man of great wisdom, promptly cancelled the idea which was incorporated in a proposed municipal ordinance for Avalon, on the South Jersey shore. Commissioner Burnett, in ordering the section withdrawn, said that man likes to run with the herd, that when he drinks alone he is dangerous and that besides the bartenders would get around the matter some way.

We are not familiar with the purport of the proposed ordinance, but we suppose some altruist figured it might reduce drinking. If a man who had the price was not permitted to buy drinks for a man without the price, naturally the minus man could not drink.

We judge that the fellow who thought that up is either not a drinking man himself, or has no compassion in him. It makes us feel sad just thinking of a man standing at a bar without the price of a drink with a pal possessed of the price alongside him but prohibited by law from saying "What'll it be?"

Of course the bartenders would get around that one. They would get around it not because bartenders want to increase trade but because bartenders have heart and soul. We have not looked a bartender in the eye in years, yet we have enough confidence in humanity to think that this is one breed that has not changed. We never saw but one bartender who could stand back there and see a man suffer and it afterwards developed that he was a murderer.

In the days when we were somewhat more conversant with the customs of bar room drinking than we are now, it was taken for granted that a man stepping up to the bar to buy a drink was going to invite all those of his acquaintance at the bar to have one with him. If it was payday, and he had a couple before his arrival he might include even those at the bar unknown to him in his invitation.

He might even go so far as to take in everyone in the bar room, including the boys in the back room. They were always some boys in the back room. Then someone else would call for the next round and the ordering would pass around the group until it got around to the first fellow again and the bartender would present a round on the house, and by that time everybody was bosom friends and telling each other what nice wives they had waiting for them at home.

A chap who walked up to a bar in our day and ordered and drank a drink without asking anyone to join him, was "a Dick Smith," and an object of public contempt. We do not know why he was "a Dick Smith." We suppose there was some well known loner of that name in the beginning, but we never met that particular fellow though we kenw a thousand "Dick Smiths." To drink alone was regarded as not only uncompanionable, but miserly.

We do not remember that it was characteristic of loners to be dangerous, as the New Jersey commissioner suggests. They were just cranery—morose fellows, unsociable by nature. Probably most of them discovered early in life that they had poor voices which barred them from the community singing of the bar rooms and that made them moody. But more probably they were just innately stingy.

'Daze' Defense in Wife Killing Case

WORCESTER, Feb. 2—After testifying he "was in a daze" the night his wife met death, Howard R. Gordon, 48, of Grafton street, a truck driver and afther of six children, today renewed his battle in Superior Court today to clear himself of second degree murder charges growing out of her death last Oct. 10.

Police have testified, in charging that Gordon "did assault and beat his wife with intent to murder her by striking and kicking her," that he walked into the police station and later confessed to killing her.

Gordon told the court that the morning his wife, Aurore, was found dead, he struck his head against a door and "something clicked in my head . . I stumbled into bed and became unconscious. When I awoke my feet were in my wife's face

Love And Marriage

Ex-Invalid Seeks Life

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

When I was entering my teens, I became ill and was kept in the house and bed most of the time, undergoing a serious operation, which nearly took my life. I had to give up everything—school, friends—and amused myself the best I could

I am 32 years of age now and realize I must find my place in life and make myself agreeable to people. On account of not meeting anyone or going places during these past years, I have become very shy. The gentlemen I meet either are married or have girls. Perhaps I've waited too long and am too old.

PERPLEXED

First, please let me say that I'm glad you live next door to a big city. If you lived in a rural community, it would be hard to make new contacts. There are dozens, scores, even hundreds of women's clubs. In what are you interested? Is it civics, home economics, Republican or Democratic club, political study club, music, drama, art?

As your letter was very well written and highly intelligent but too long to print, I'm sure you're eligible to belong to any of the better organizations. So much for your leisure time.

Now to get down to basic principles. Have you a job? Or has this long spell of invalidism prevented you from getting the necessary training to hold a job. Look into vocational training, government printing office and the Department of Agriculture.

Pattern 9311 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 35 inch Fabric. To get this picture send fifteen cents in coins to Boston evening American, Pattern Department, 232 West 18th st., New York, N. Y. Ten cents additional will bring you our newest Pattern Book.

Perfume Makes Ideal Gift

By ARLENE GOULD

PERHAPS its a little early to write of Valentine gifts . . . but it's none too early to hint to your beloved, so keep this in mind this week:

Perfume is the ideal remembrance for a day given over to romance, and one of the better known perfumers has come right to the front with a lovely gift package of his $2 size vial . . . a price that practically anyone can meet.

This house has become famous for its lovely scents and its blue and silver color scheme; the gift package is much more "de luxe," but carries out the idea.

The slim, deep blue bottle of perfume sets on a blue and silver base; over it is a removable acetate cover, which gives the impression of the flowers under glass on your grandmother's parlor table.

The transparent cover has a lovely blue and white scroll flower design, and the other carton is in blue with a two-toned flowing ribbon border in red and white, with the traditional arrow-pierced heart in the center.

The elegantly packaged bottle sell for exactly the same price that you would pay without the fixings, and it makes a very impressive holiday present.

Call Arlene Gould any weekday except Saturday, between 9 and 5, at LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston American, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope, for further information about this gift.

Martha Lee Offers Many Dainty Lenten Dishes

By MARTHA LEE

Making its earliest appearance in a great many years, the Lenten season will be with us on Feb. 7, and will last until March 23. The early start of this Lent will catch many unprepared for the food requirements of that season.

Lent time is fish time, due to the many days when abstinence from meat is necessary. The following 1940 Lent calendar gives the days of abstinence:

FEBRUARY

Wednesdays—7 (Ash Wednesday), 14, 21, 28.
Fridays—9, 16, 23.

MARCH

Wednesdays—6, 13, 20.
Fridays—1, 8, 15, 22 (Good Friday).
Saturday—23 (Holy Saturday).

With so many days of abstinence there will be a great need for variety in food. Fish lends itself ideally to variety, for there are 165 edible seafoods and each can be prepared in many different ways.

SEAFOOD COOK BOOK

A great help for the Lenten season will be the Seafood Cook Book. It can be obtained without any cost. If you would like a copy write to Martha Lee at the Record-American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston, Mass. Included in the 160 recipes and general information on fish and seafood are the following:

BOILED COD CREOLE

Mince 3 sticks celery with the leaves 1 medium sized onion; cook in 4 tablespoons of oil until soft. Add No. 2 can tomatoes. Season with salt, pepper, hot pepper Bring to a boil. Add 3 lb. piece of cod, 6 peeled potatoes. Cover and simmer till fish is cooked Baste every ten minutes.

CASSEROLE OF HADDOCK

Mix 2 cups each—carrot, onion celery and potato; season with salt and pepper. Put half mixture into oiled casserole. Skin 4 lb piece haddock, brown in ½ cup hot oil. Place in casserole Add rest of vegetables. Brown one clove of garlic, minced, in oil. Pour in 2½ cups water and boil up. Pour into casserole. Cover and bake. Place fish on platter, surround with drained vegetables. Add equal amount rich milk to fish liquor then thicken with 2 tbsp. flour per cup liquid. Pour over fish Garnish with capers.

Announcement to the many friends and patrons of
I. WINNER, Furrier

You will be pleased to know that I have established my own Fur business at 600 Washington St., Room 610, where I am having a clearance sale of choice quality fur coats in MINK, PERSIAN LAMB, SEAL, MINK and SABLE BLENDED MUSKRAT, let out SILVER RACCOON and others. Not a sale of "leftovers" but of new advanced 1940-1941 styles.

Operating as an individual, with very little overhead, located in heart of wholesale fur district, and with connections built up over a period of many years, I can sell furs at prices you would think impossible in view of the still rising fur market.

A visit to the showroom will convince you of the tremendous savings that can be yours.

BEFORE A SHOW ends they always give a glimpse of coming attractions . . . and as we see no reason why the theaters should have anything on us, we're going to do the same . . .

A few more weeks will ring down the curtain on the 1939-40 debutante season so it's time to take a little peek into the future to see what next year's deb crop has in store . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee of Beacon st. are planning to present their daughter, Constance, with next year's flock . . . If Connie takes after her mother she should be right out in front in the race for "best dressed" . . . As far as we know the distinction of having the most unusual name will belong to Barsha Powers . . . She's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Powers and won't have to rely on the uniqueness of her name to attract attention for she's endowed with a generous share of good looks as well as family prestige . . .

Beverly Moore, a tall willowy blonde, is the type to be much in demand as a fashion show model . . . She has a flair for choosing distinctive clothes and favors tones of fuchsia and purple for daytime wear . . .

Barbara Higginson to Make Bow June 8

IN SPITE of her shock of reddish gold hair, pretty Barbara Higginson answers to the nickname of "Higgie"—and not "Red" as you might expect . . . She is the Henry Lee Higginsons' daughter, and is the first of the coming flock of debs to announce the date of her party . . . It will be a luncheon on June 8, soon after her graduation from Beaver Country Day . . .

Like everything else in this age of specialization, becoming a popular debutante requires preparation and thought . . . and a girl who has someone to show her the ropes has a head start on the rest of the field . . . Janet Harwood and Alice Plummer will have a tremendous advantage over many of their friends who are coming out next year, in having older sisters to give them pointers . . . Janet's sister, Polly, made her debut last winter, and Alice will follow in the footsteps of her sister, Sue, one of this year's debs . . .

The happy hectic whirl of Anne Williams' deb activities will probably provide her author father, Ben Ames Williams, with material for some of his stories . . . She is a chum of Virginia Marston, Yvettes Laneres, Christina Baker and several other attractive sub-debs . . .

Lee Stowell Cullen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Fred Cullen of Beacon st., will have two sisters to show her the ropes when she embarks on the social whirl next winter, and still another charming addition to the flock will be Polly Saltonstall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Saltonstall of Sherborn and niece of the Governor . . .

Notes From a Society Editor's Cuff

MISS FANNY MASON was hostess at a nightcap party for a few intimate friends of Mrs. Charles S. French following the latter's recital at Jordan Hall last evening . . . Gathered at Miss Mason's Commonwealth ave. home to congratulate the socialite singer were Mrs. Franklin Hobbs, Mrs. Charles P. Sylvester, Mrs. A. Clement Titcomb, Mrs. Horace Binney and others . . . The striking red and gold costume jewelry which Becky Hobbs has been sporting this week has caught the eye of several society editors who described it in their columns . . . so Marge Adams, who presented it to Becky as a birthday present last Monday, is pretty proud of the way she can pick 'em . . . Olive McIlwain of Belmont, fiancee of Walter K. Kerr, Jr., of Philadelphia, is spending the week-end with his family in the Quaker City . . . She is a senior at Connecticut College . . .

Club Sponsors Newton Fetes

Marguerite M. Barry of Newton is general chairman of the series of hostess parties under the sponsorship of the Tekakwitha Club.

Mrs. Edward Janse, of Greenwood st., Newton Center, is giving the opening party next Tuesday evening.

Helen O'Connor, of Newton Center . . . president of the organization . . . is a member of the planning committee, which also includes Mary Murphy, hostess chairman; Helen G. Russo, chairman of chances, and Adelaide Griffin, publicity director.

PLAY FOR CHILDREN

With the First Lady of the nation, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, and the First Lady of the theater, Helen Hayes, as sponsors, the Clare Tree Major series of plays for children, presented here by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, has very distinguished patronage.

Next performance in the series will be tomorrow morning at the Repertory Theater.

PRISCILLA DAMON, Brookline society songstress, will sing a program of folk songs in five languages, at a charity party this evening at Gundlach's Hofbrau.

Ace of Clubs

Dinners to Precede Dance

Lots of entertaining before the Ace of Clubs supper dance this evening at the Somerset . . . always one of late winter's outstanding social events.

One of the largest dinner parties will be given by Mary Fitzgerald . . . daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Fitzgerald of Dorchester. Her guests include Marie Mullin, Margaret Donovan, Mildred Sullivan, Alice Barry, Catherine Dowling Barbara Lynch, Ruth Gaddis.

Also Dr. and Mrs. Peter Dempsey, Dr. and Mrs. Hugh C. Donahue, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gallagher, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whalen, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Shughrue and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harrison.

Dining with Dr. and Mrs. Francis Jantzen . . . the latter is a past-president of Ace . . . will be Mr. and Frank J. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. O'Donnell, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Fisher and Dr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Duffy.

At their Belmont home, Mr. and Warren Rowe are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carven, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Ferrone, Dorothy Sullivan and her fiance, Jack McGowan.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard O'Keeffe's party guests are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Murphy, Margaret Sullivan, Austin Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Donahue and Mr. and Mrs. John Spellman.

MARY FITZGERALD

Joseph Kennedy, Jr., son of Ambassador Kennedy, will be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore E. Gavin . . . Other guests will include Mrs. Gavin's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Creamer of Pawtucket, with their daughters, Elizabeth and Anne Creamer, Martha Brennan, Morgan Shattuck, Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Caulfield, Mr. and Mrs. J. Weston Lyons, Miss Valentine Pappas, Edward Sliney, Edward Delaney, Albert Horsfall, Theodore E. Gavin, Jr., and Miss Jerry Gavin, who is home from Trinity.

Fiance Married Before

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Will you please advise me if it is correct to have a large church wedding, the bride wearing a white wedding dress and bridal veil, if the groom has been married before?

The etiquette books, of course, say very definitely that if the bride has been married before, her wedding should be very quiet and simple, no bridal veil and so on.

2—Is it correct to send invitations to the people who were invited to the groom-elect's first wedding? C.

1—This lovely young bride-elect may correctly have the real wedding you want for her, even if the bridegroom-elect is a widower. (If he is divorced, this is, of course, a question of your church denomination.)

That is, since the bride is being married for the first time, the details of her wedding are the same, whether she marries a bachelor or a widower.

2—Yes, by all means send wedding invitations to the friends of the bridegroom.

PEANUT BUTTER BLANC MANGE

[Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute]

Use Institute-approved measuring cups and spoons. Measure level

INGREDIENTS

2 c. bottled milk or 1¼ c. evaporated milk and ¾ c. water
½ c. peanut butter
½ c. brown sugar
½ tsp. salt
¾ c. cornstarch

METHOD OF PREPARATION

Scald milk in the top of a double boiler. Add the peanut butter, sugar and salt, and stir until well blended. Stir in cornstarch and water which have been mixed together. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thick. Cover and cook 15 min., stirring occasionally. Chill in bowl covered with waxed paper until serving time. Serves 6. To serve 2 or 3, make half this recipe.

Menu Suggestion: Serve with sauteed lamb chops, scalloped potatoes, orange and prune salad and coffee.

'GERONIMO' PACKS THRILLS FOR PARA-FENWAY AUDIENCES

New Film Reeks With Suspense

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Geronimo," Paramount's cavalry vs. Indians screen warfare, is just what the doctor ordered for the Paramount and Fenway houses where audiences are partial to red-blooded yarns reeking with suspense and thrills.

Although the story is largely fiction, has a father-son angle reminiscent of "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and several hundred feet that might have been lifted from "The Plainsman," Paul Sloane based his original screen story on the actual Geronimo campaign.

Sloane, who also directed the production, has contrived to give a vigorous, sweeping quality to his action-packed adventure yarn and it is certain that "Geronimo" will click at the box office.

Geronimo, for those who missed that semester in American history, was the leader in the last Indian uprising, in which the Apaches played the principal roles. He was as treacherous as he was brave, and the very mention of his name in those furious border days was the signal for the white settlers to remove their muskets from the wall-pegs, bar the windows and hide the women and children.

The locale is an Arizona outpost, where Ralph Morgan has recently been assigned to the command of the Sixth Cavalry. He is a severe disciplinarian, who recognizes no sentiment. Preston Foster, captain of the post, resents, but abides by his stern commands. That is, he abides by them until he notes how they are breaking down the morale of the post's newest arrival, William Henry, young West Pointer, and "General" Morgan's estranged son.

The boy eventually proves his mettle to his soldier-father but not until great tragedy has come to both of them.

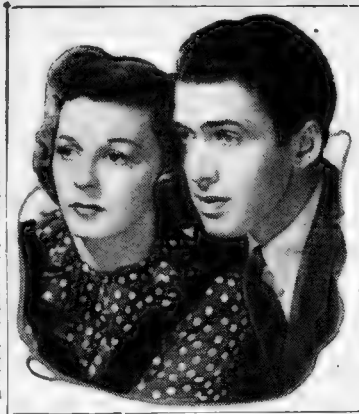
Foster, excellent actor that he is when properly cast, stands out as the brusque, resourceful, courageous soldier whose gold-buttoned blue coat covers a heart of pure platinum. Andy Devine, as his Indian scout buddy, does a takeoff on Bob Burns that has a nice homespun flavor. We haven't met many generals in our day but it's our guess that the Grants and the Pershings couldn't have done their stuff if they'd been as fretful as Morgan looked.

But Chief Thunder Cloud's Geronimo—now there's a lad to avoid when he's on the warpath! Without uttering a syllable, or raising a tomahawk, he can give your wig a crew-cut lift.

Our favorite uniform-wearer, Pat O'Brien, goes civilian for "The Night of Nights," the companion picture featuring Olympe Bradna, Reginald Gardiner, Roland Young and George E. Stone.



MARGARET SULLAVAN and James Stewart share a puzzled moment in "The Shop Around the Corner," opening tomorrow at Loew's State. It was directed by Ernest Lubitsch.

Gala Vaudeville at Boston

By HARRIS MORGAN

Charles "Slim" Timblin, whose contributed renewed animal spirits to the long-lived stage hit, is currently provoking laughs from RKO Boston audiences.

His chef d'oeuvre continues to be his well known vaudeville skit, "The Preacher," which he does in blackface. It winds up with his colored parson marrying a sepian couple whose responses reveal a Scottish burr you could cut with a knife and an Italian accent as authentic as imported Bel Paese.

The Randall Sisters make a hit with their "Jumpin' Jive" harmonizing as well as their comic version of "The Old Apple Tree in the Orchard."

Tap-dancing Ted Adair and company are an agreeable addition to the program, as are the Carr Brothers, who do a tumbling act with comedy. The Brothers are assisted by Betty, whose tapping is up to standard.

Master of Ceremonies Don Rice doesn't spare the horse-laughs during his tenancy of the RKO Boston stage. His humor is magna vox and includes throwing dummies and firing guns into the front pews. From our immune eminence in the press box, there appeared to be not the least objection from the customers who, on the other fist, seemed completely delighted with the noisy cavortings of Mister Rice.

Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road" hit, is currently provoking laughs from RKO Boston audiences.

In combination with the stage show, the Boston is showing two first-run film productions, "Two Thoroughbreds," co-starring Hollywood's newest juvenile "finds" Jimmy Lydon and Joan Brodel, and "Inspector Hornleigh On a Holiday," with Gordon Harker and Alastair Sim.

Poland Lecture On Sunday Night

Julien Bryan's exclusive illustrated lecture, "Hitler Invades Poland," will be presented at Symphony Hall next Sunday night under the auspices of the Polish Students Club. The proceeds will go to the club. The lecture will deal with Poland as it was just before the Nazi invasion and with the siege of Warsaw, which marked the highspot in the Nazi blitzkrieg.

Margie Hart in Howard's Late Show

Starring in tonight's regular midnight show at the Old Howard is Margie Hart, who needs no introduction to Hub burlesque fans.

Assisting her in the week's stage revue, "High Steppers," is a large cast headed by "Peaches," Harry Evanson, "Dusty" Fletcher, Blanche Thompson, Sammy Gardner, I. B. Hamp, Gertie Beck, Winnie Garrett, Claire Nelson and the 30 song-and-dance girls of the chorus.

Adventure, Romance At Keith Memorial

If you like your romance and adventure laid on with a steam shovel, you will probably gasp with excitement at "Green Hell," in which a brunette Joan Bennett and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., along with a half-dozen intrepid treasure hunters, battle the terrors of the jungle at the Keith-Memorial.

And what a jungle this is, with giant deadly snakes, poisoned arrows, masses of orchids and weird tropical vegetation to say nothing of head-hunters lurking in the swamps bent on collecting the skulls of these lovely Hollywood folk.

Frances Marion, who has been writing scenarios since before the current crop of stars was born reached into her knitting bag and pulled out this one. Joan is the only woman in the party marooned in the heart of the Amazon jungle. Her husband, a doctor, with the expedition, (played by Vincent Price, who had a slightly better role in "Victoria Regina") is killed off early in the picture.

Thus the hardy adventurers are left to fight almost unbearable dangers, and to fall in love, each in his own way, with the lovely widow. Even a less glamorous widow with the entire masculine population to herself would upset the morale of the camp, and Joan's presence does just that.

Brandon, leader of the expedition portrayed by Douglas Fairbanks, resents the girl, and she resents him. The audience knows that he is in love with her, but she is still inconsolable over the death of her husband.

When it is discovered that the deceased doctor had a wife and hence was never really married to Joan, the situation gets worse. Everything happens, including tropical rains that trap the party, cannibal attacks and suicides.

Brandon, seriously wounded, is tenderly nursed back to health by the girl, and they realize at last that it is love, not hate, that they feel for one another.

Technically the picture, shot in a Hollywood studio, is a triumph of realism. Miss Bennett is not quite believable, but neither is the role, which also goes for Douglas. The supporting cast includes George Sanders, John Howard, Alan Hale and Gene Garrick, all in good performances.

On the same bill is "Charlie McCarthy, Detective," in which Bergen's famous leading man sings Mortimer Snerd appears in this tale of murder and intrigue, along with Robert Cummings, Constance Moore, Louis Calhern and Edgar Kennedy. M. N. S.

Holmes to Lecture On Mediterranean

Continuing his present series of popular travelogues, Burton Holmes will present "Mediterranean Odyssey Cruise" in Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon. A journey featuring visits to some of the remote parts of this popular travel area. Places visited include Athens in Greece, Broussa, ancient capital of Turkey, Mt. Athos, the Holy Peninsula, Ragusa, Cattat and Korcula. On the following Saturday afternoon, Mr. Holmes will give his final travelogue of the current series, "More About Sweden."

Two Shows End Runs Saturday

Connie Gilchrist, who is forever being cast in roles requiring a salty American flavor—as is the case in her Mrs. Rudd in the Colonial Theater's "Ladies and Gentlemen"—curiously enough has done most of her acting in France and England. American-born, she spent five years touring those two countries in repertory.

Upon her return, she scored in "Excursion," and now, again, in the Helen Hayes-Philip Merivale co-starring comedy, which terminates its local engagement following tomorrow night's performance.

"Two for the Show," sequel to last season's Broadway musical revue, "One for the Money," ends its engagement at the Shubert Theater tomorrow night after a second "demand" week.

It has a starring cast and has been given an excellent production by Gertrude Macy and Stanley Gilkey. It is more than likely that Broadway will like it as much—it couldn't like it any more—than Boston.

Notable performances are given by Brenda Forbes, Eve Arden, Keenan Wynn, Betty Hutton, Richard Haydn, Tommy Wonder, Eunice Healy, Richard Smart and others.

Nancy Hamilton, who appeared in "One for the Money," which she authored, has confined her talents to writing the lyrics and skits for "Two for the Show."

Alumni Chapter Dinner Tonight

The annual dinner and social meeting of the Boston Alumni of the University of Connecticut will be held tonight at the Kenmore Hotel.

Professor Cecil Tilton, of the University of Connecticut's department of economics, will address the gathering on the present and future plans of the university.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2—"The Grapes of Wrath" will pay off itself in no time, for it is doing tremendous business in New York. "Gone With the Wind," which cost $4,000,000, will pay that expense in two and a half months.

"The Fighting 69th" is also getting the shekels in at the box-office, so it isn't surprising that 1940 will see fewer and better pictures. The cheap pictures will be eliminated and only class productions will come out of Hollywood. That means that the shorts will come into their own, and instead of the intermediate group, you will see big productions and supplementary entertainment—short reelers.

This will mean the death knell of the double feature, which, I believe, is largely responsible for the bad business at the box-office.

If Thelma Thrabel's serial, "Reap the Wind," shortly to be published in a current magazine, is as exciting as Paramount claims—well, they've really got something. 'Tis the story of the wreckers who salvaged the shores after the 1825 hurricane. Some of them did good work and others pirated the belongings of the unfortunates.

When I was told that Claudette Colbert would have the lead I laughed for I cannot see how Claudette can do any more pictures but this one won't be filmed for a year so maybe it will be possible. The price paid was $20,000—plenty for a galley proof yarn, I'd say.

I was talking with Eddie Mannix on the M-G-M lot and he told me that the "Hardy Family" had made more money than any other picture of its type on the market. So it's up to us, he said, to see that we get good stories.

Katherine Brush arrives here in a day or two to write a screen play in which the whole Hardy family will be starred rather than any one member of the family. Miss Brush wrote "Red Headed Woman," the motion picture which first brought Jean Harlow success, and she is a highly successful author. The first "Hardy" picture was made in March, 1937, and there have been eight.

Evans Proved Critics Wrong

Smashing stage traditions is commonly regarded as a dangerous occupation for those thespians who wish to remain in the category of eating-actors. Yet, just that has been done with signal success by the young English actor, Maurice Evans. His uncut version of Hamlet which runs from 6:15 to 11:15, a long time to sit through any play, has made him an outstanding tradition-smasher in the past year.

Wiseacres said it couldn't be done; that Hamlet, always the simultaneous ambition and despair of dramatic actors, would never hold American audiences for five hours. Mr. Evans thought differently, box office receipts, most potent of arguments, proved that he was right.

To the average American, the character of Hamlet presents a hazy picture of an unpleasant man who wanders around talking to himself and doing fantastic remorse scenes. Margaret Case Harriman, who has a story about Evans in the March Cosmopolitan, quotes the actor as saying:

"Little by little, actors have been so carried away by 'Hamlet's' educational possibilities that they have forgotten to give the audience an interesting show. With my production, the play is indeed the thing. Incidentally, in the restored (original) version, Hamlet himself does not hog the stage as much as he does in the cut versions."

All of which seems to pretty well shoot full of holes the old Broadway theory that American audiences want hokum. If they can get good plays with good actors they will support the productions, length or no length, subject or no subject.

ELSIE ROBINSON writes the woman's viewpoint, discusses everyday affairs and problems regularly in the Boston American.

Stock Market Leaders Edge Higher

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—The stock market showed signs of convalescence today as steels, aircrafts and specialties edged forward.

While gains ran to a point or so for favorites numerous issues were at a standstill and dealings were about as slow as in the preceding session.

Tilting higher were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, National Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, Anaconda, General Electric, Southern Pacific and Great Northern.

Bonds were selectively improved and most commodities displayed moderately rising tendencies. Foreign securities markets were mixed.

There was little change in the news picture, although business items here and there were more cheerful than otherwise.

The lengthy market stalemate, brokers said, inspired some speculative buying in the share list on the theory there was a good chance of a break-out on the upside in view of the decline which has wiped out virtually all of the September bulge.

A prop for market sentiment was found in week-end merchandising surveys reporting a brisk pickup in public spending as rising temperatures in most parts of the country enabled customers to get out of doors.

Retail distribution for the nation as a whole was placed at 5 to 9 per cent over the comparable 1939 week by Dun & Bradstreet. The Southwest was said to have been the only region to show a decline from last year.

Notice was taken of the Bureau of Labor Statistics summary indicating the index of wholesale commodity prices during the week ended Jan. 27, dropped 3-10 per cent to 79.1 per cent of the 1926 average, lowest level since mid-December.

Noon prices: General Motors 52¾, up ¼; Chrysler 81⅛, up ⅛; Bethlehem Steel 74, up ⅜; U. S. Steel 57¼, up ⅜; Douglas 81⅛, up 7/8; Montgomery Ward 52⅛, up 1; Anaconda Copper 27¾, up ⅜; Westinghouse Electric 108¾, unchanged; N. Y. Central 16⅞, up ⅜; U. S. Rubber 36⅜, up ⅜.

Railroads' Income Up

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today that class 1 railroads had net railway operating income of $588,800,892 in 1939, compared with $373,510,639 in 1938 and $868,719,483 in 1930.

The association said the 1939 income represented a return of 2.26 per cent on the railroads' property investment. This compared with a return of 1.43 per cent in 1938 and 3.36 in 1930.

Gross operating revenues in 1939 totaled $3,995,070,943, compared with $3,564,829,551 in 1938. Operating expenses in 1939 amounted to $2,918,215,991, compared with $2,721,494,485 in 1938.

For the month of December the class 1 railroads had net railway operating income of $60,953,114. In December, 1938, their net railway operating income was $49,418,855.

A. & P. DECLARES $3.50 DIVIDEND

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (AP)—Directors of Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. today declared a dividend of $3.50 a share on common stock and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred, both payable Feb. 16 to holders of record Feb. 5.

During 1939 the company paid common dividends of $3 a share on Feb. 16, and $1.50 each in June, September and December.

Economy Stores

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Economy Grocery Stores, held today, a dividend of 25c a share was declared on the 120,000 shares of common stock to stockholders of record March 15th, payable March 25.

Damage to N. E. Wool Textiles

The damage done the domestic wool textile industry, so largely located in New England, is clearly proven by facts and figures now being submitted to the Congressional committee holding hearings on the extension of the trade agreements act . . .

ARTHUR BESSE . . . President of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers produced irrefutable evidence of the Act's harmful effects . . . In the shape of figures on British exports to the United States following inauguration of the lower tariffs provided in the trade agreement . . . Effects, incidentally, which the war did not offset . . . But which the war caused depreciation of the pound sterling aggravated . . . Thus benefits granted English manufacturers are augmented by the workings of British financial and monetary policy . . . Thus placing domestic mills at an even greater disadvantage than opponents of the original act visualized . . . Particularly spokesmen for New England manufacturers . . .

to British wool textile makers . . . In the first five months shipments here jumped 358 per cent above comparable 1938 levels . . . And for the first 11 months of the year, despite the handicap of war, imports were twice the size of the same period a year previous . . . And now the pound sterling's slump is providing an additional advantage of about 20 per cent . . . Small wonder American wool textile leaders are worried . . . While Mr. Besse says imports will reach a new high during 1940 unless something happens . . . A something which clearly enough means stoppage of trade pact leaks . . .

CORPORATION . . . Reports no longer are dull, dreary affairs composed of columns of figures, all but meaningless to the average worker and investor . . . Many of them actually make exciting reading . . . Due to simplified streamlining so long and earnestly advocated by Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, economic commentator for the International News Service . . . In both his columns appearing in this paper and his frequent lectures and addresses to business leaders, Mr. Rukeyser campaigned for the adoption of simple, easy to understand corporate statements . . .

AN IMPORTANT . . . Contribution to simplified accounting is made by Swift & Co. in its report for 1939 . . . T. H. Menten forwarded a copy to us which we find pictorial presentation of the company's income and outgo . . . Employees reading will obtain a more happens to the corporate dollar . . . How much goes for wages and earnings for shareholders is carefully set out . . . Together with a detailed explanation of all expenses . . .

THE MARKET . . . Is acting so unlifelike that it will not surprise us if it suddenly starts doing things . . . Rarely do prices make such a close approach to complete stagnation . . . For the reason forces making trade activity are never suspended . . . If they are not working for expansion then they are exerting a deflationary influence . . . Talk of trade plateaus is fine and good in scholarly circles but graph lines of activity seldom flatten out . . . Such occasions more often than not mark high and low points . . . And the present very definitely fails to reveal any plateaus . . .

FEBRUARY . . . Often proves to be the month in which market interests attempt to anticipate trade trends . . . With January representing something of a transmission period between activity periods . . . Spring news is likely to clear in the days ahead . . . Enough at least to encourage greater market interest . . . Consequently we would not read in current price idleness a message telling of impairment of the market's ability to sense the course of trade . . . Indeed a spell of dullness around the old lows may well bespeak a smaller decline than many now anticipate . . .

THE BUGABOO . . . Of the national debt is the essence of today's small but potent pictograph . . . For it shows the share borne per person . . . Which is about $318 today . . . A figure interesting for its size . . . But also because it represents the approximate high unlimit . . . A matter of no small conder the present constitutional debt cern to politicians as well as financiers . . . For the former know that in assing for any new holst in the legal limit they are in effect asking Congress to vote for an increase in the load carried per person . . . The latter, while wondering how such a proposal can be sugar coated to insure its acceptance, also worriedly mull over the ultimate capacities of financial institutions in deficit financing . . .

SWEDEN BUYS PLANES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (INS)—While Secretary of State Hull nailed tight a government barricade against aircraft sales to Soviet Russia, Sweden had a green light for a $7,000,000 purchase of American planes to contest any Soviet bombing attack.

The aeronautical chamber of commerce said Swedish negotiations for 120 Vultee pursuit ships, priced at about $60,000 each, had won approval of an army-navy clearance board and were otherwise well advanced.

Regulations issued months ago empowered the board to veto export orders interfering with United States air armament or otherwise detrimental to national defense. Military quarters said a clearance was granted readily on the Vultees.

These quarters identified the Norwegian-born Arctic pilot, Bernt Balchen, a naturalized American citizen, as chief technician of the Swedish mission negotiating the purchase. Balchen won fame as Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's chief pilot on his last Antarctic expedition.

The mission, military sources added, had made plain to American authorities that the purchase had root in Sweden's fear that the spring might find the Soviet expedition against Finland spreading over onto Swedish soil.

Soviet Ambassador Constantine Oumansky, on his first State Department call since his return from Moscow in November, presented the Russian case for renewed access to American aircraft during a half-hour conference with Hull.

Election Year Holds Pitfalls For Business

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Business unquestionably has a vital stake in the forthcoming national election.

Yet, unless it proceeds wisely, its expressions may prove a boomerang.

Apparently, it's all right for spenders and wasters to organize colossal pressure groups, yet there is an attempt to smear business for demanding prudence and economy.

With great candor Colby M. Chester, chairman of General Foods Corp., considered this subject in a recent talk before the Economic Club of Detroit. Remarking the awkwardness of just what some messages employed in the 1936 election Mr. Chester cautioned his fellow executives from repeating this folly.

"This is an election year," the business man said. "I think it presents an opportunity for enlightened management to reaffirm its policy which is properly stated in these words: 'Hands off attempting to influence employes in any election.'

". . . Business management should do no more than state the facts as they are the facts, and let it go at that. They should do no electioneering among their employes for any political candidates. Modern management knows that to do that would be an insult to the intelligence of the employe."

Those are sensible words. Election year or not, workers don't want "spoon fed" information from management. On the other hand, they welcome full disclosures, which give them an opportunity to reach their own conclusions.

From this viewpoint, it seems advisable for management to submit the same factual information to employes and to stockholders. It seems inexpedient to make the annual report to workers differ in form or in content from that sent to stockholders.

As a matter of fact, employes receive a vastly greater percentage of the gross receipts of the typical corporation than stockholders. Consequently, they are greatly concerned with developments which condition the success of the enterprise.

Thus, instead of shedding emotional tears over high taxes, management should express the tax load as a business cost which has a prior claim to receipts over wages and dividends.

Moreover, in an election year, as in other periods, business can tell its story through simplifying its own corporate reports. This is a realistic approach. And the public takes such specific data in better grace than the abstract generalizations of Chambers of Commerce and national industrial organizations — the professional mouthpieces of business.

Earnings

Sterling, Inc., and wholly owned subsidiaries report for six months ended Nov. 30, 1939, net profit of $151,950, or 31 cents a share on common. This compares with $177,763, or 36 cents a share, in the 1938 period.

Greenfield Tap & Die Corporation reports for the year ended Dec. 31, 1939, profit of $202,390, equal to 28 cents per share on the 143,087 shares of common stock. This compares with a loss of $246 in 1938. Of the 1939 profit nearly half, or $98,934 came in the final quarter of the year.

Merchants & Miners Transportation Company reported for year ended Dec. 31, 1939, net profit of $5,560,755, equal to $6.40 a common share. Net profit for 1938 was $493,138.

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By CHARLES McGUIRK

NEWELL is the county seat of Wren, an agricultural district whose fertility is known and wondered at in places as far away as Europe. The county's rolling country produces corn as sweet as Iowa's, milch cattle as good as any in the world, horses of the tough Morgan strain, potatoes equal in size to those of Idaho, and people who themselves admit are of the finest strain in America.

Wren is situated in Southern Jersey and in the late 1690's became the boundry line between the romantic, easy-going Cavalier followers of Lord Cataret and the dour Puritan van of the Rev. Pearson's godly army who were boosted out of Connecticut by the other Puritans because their interpretation of the Scriptures was too strict and founded and settled in Newark.

Now among the Puritans was many a maiden whose very looks were sinful, according to their own rigid code. And there were many young men whose hot blood craved the warmth of the broad-minded women of the Cavaliers. It was inevitable, nature being what she is, that the two strains should mingle in the bonds of matrimony. So, today, the descendents of these unions combine the easy good looks and bountiful nature of the Cavaliers and the steady relentless will of the Puritans. David Consol was a fine example of the blend.

David Consol was 30 and unmarried and one of the most eligible bachelors in the East. He lived on the Consol farm, a 200-acre tract which was a Garden of Eden in fertility. He was a graduate of the oldest college in the state, the second oldest in the East and the third oldest in America, which was founded by the Rev. Aaron Burr, father of the most romantic figure in American history.

He was the possessor of a fortune which showed by its size and safety from the worm that eateth that the Consols for generations had been shrewd business men. It was somewhere in the millions. Those three things—his birth, his breeding and his wealth—made him the subject of a hunt conducted by the mammas of eligible daughters from coast to coast.

David was aware of it but not particularly interested. He lived his own life, which was governed by a perpetual conflict between the blood of Cavaliers and that of Puritans which flowed in him. He was given to long periods of intensive, heart-breaking work on his farm and among his investments. This was the Puritans working. And then he would burst forth into sprees of gaiety during which he attended the theater, danced in the night clubs and gambled at Martucci's, a place just outside the city where only millionaires are welcomed.

And whether he was working intensively or playing the same way, he could always be found at the Canavan House in Newell because he was a great and delicate eater and the Canavan House was known to gourmands straight across the country. The Canavan House was an institution. It was founded soon after the Civil War by a man named John Canavan, a Dutch-Irish American cook, who developed American cooking so that it could vie with that of the French. When he died, he left the hotel and its restaurant and his huge volume of American recipes to his son, whom he had trained as a cook. Henry Canavan, the third generation, had by judicious advertising built up the place to what it was today, a mecca for gourmands.

The Cast of Characters in "Are You Married?"

DAVID CONSOL, wealthy bachelor and gentleman farmer.

ELLEN BELLAMY, a new waitress in the establishment where Consol often dines.

THE NEW GIRL:

There was nothing ornate about Canavan's except its food and drink. And the food was served, not by waiters, but by waitresses, generally buxom, comely farm girls from the surrounding country. Three of them worked regularly, five in times of great demand.

David liked women to wait on him. There was something restful in their presence, something mildly exciting in their persons as they bent past him to lay a dish on the table. He liked the buxomness of the Canavan girls. It made him think of the rolling fertility of his farm lands, the sleekness of his live stock, the warmth of his fireplace on a winter night. His food tasted better. He tipped them liberally.

On the day the new waitress appeared, David was having a late dinner at the Canavan House. He hardly noticed her, realizing only that she was different from the girls he had been used to having wait on him. He was half through his meal before it occurred to him to find out what that difference was. He stared at her.

She was small but delicately made. Her shoulders were wide and sloping. Her fullnesses were better than correct. They were inviting. She had blue eyes and brown hair, a short nose and a sweet, tempestuous mouth. But the thing that David noted was that her ankles were slender and he stared at them because he was always seeking to prove a theory. The theory was that slim ankles in horses and in the human race betokened race and breeding.

When he was finished with his steak, she came to take the empty dishes away and to get his order for dessert. Her arm brushed his shoulder as she reached and he experienced a faint tingling. He perienced a faint tingling. He picked up a menu and pretended to study it as she stood waiting.

"I think it will be apple pie with cheese" he told her.

She walked away, without answering him and, in time, returned with his pie and coffee. She set it down and walked away and took her stand at a table against the wall across the room from him. She stood there, acting as if she was staring into space, but seeing every move of the patrons with a part of her eye. As he ate, he studied her.

She was a pretty little thing and full of grace. The tilt of her chin was independent. He had never seen her before and that led him to believe that she was not a native or resident of either Newell or Wren County because he believed he knew everybody in both of them. A vagrant curiosity stirred in him to find out who she was.

"You're talking out of turn," David said gently. "Apologize to the lady."

He resolved to ask Henry Canavan.

As he reached this decision, a party of four men came in. They were all feeling their liquor but not subject to it. They were what people call "high." They sat down at a table near David and the girl walked over from her stand to take their order. One of the party, a large, powerful looking man, looked up at her and grinned.

"Look," he said to the other three, "a new girl, cup-bearer to the gods. Hello, sister."

She made no reply, standing there waiting for the order.

"I said, 'Hello, sister,' the big man repeated truculently. "I'm giving you a break. None of my sisters is a waitress. But I'm a democratic guy."

"APOLOGIZE!"

Henry Canavan, a short, stout man in his 50s, overheard the loud truculent tone and came hurrying from the bar to calm the troubled waiters. But as he entered the dining room, he saw David Consol rising from his chair, carefully wiping his mouth with his napkin as he did so. Henry stood waiting.

David walked over to the table and tapped the truculent one on the shoulder.

"You're talking out of turn," he said gently. "Apologize to the lady."

"What!" the democrat exploded unbelievingly. "Apologize to the help Who the hell do you think you are, I'll—"

He rose from his chair, throwing a wide right swing as he did so. The blow whistled harmlessly past David's head. Bud David's hook caught him on the chin, lifting him from his feet and depositing him hard in a sitting position. He sat there and shook his head. He started to rise again and David was standing in front of him.

"Apologize to the lady," he repeated mildly.

"I'm sorry, Miss," he mumbled. "Hey. Let's get out of here."

The girl stood, seemingly staring into space as the party left the room. David waited for an expression of her thanks. He didn't get it. He left without it. He sat at the bar with Henry Canavan and had a liqueur.

"Who is that girl, Henry?" he asked.

"Name's Helen Bellamy," Henry told him. "That's all I know about her except that she's a good waitress. Seems like a nice little things"

David was waiting in his car when she came out. He got out of the driver's seat and stood before her.

"Can I take you home?" he asked.

"Thank you," she refused. "I live only a little way up the street. But thank you, Mr. Consol for what you did in the restaurant."

"You're welcome," David said shortly. "Wouldn't you like to take a little ride before you go to bed?"

She got in after a slight hesitation and they drove through the cold, starry night. They were still driving three hours later when they came to a small roadside tavern. They got out there and went in and David ordered drinks. There was a small orchestra and a small dancing place and they joined the other dancers. She felt good in his arms and imperceptibly, he pressed her to him.

"I GET LONELY"

"That's all," she said and stepped away from the circle of his arms and walked back to the table.

"I'm sorry," David told her as he sat down.

"That's all right," she said. "I don't blame you. I'm fair game. You took me away from another man. To the victor belongs the spoils. But I'm glad to hit him not because he tried to insult me but because he classed himself among the gods. They wouldn't have looked at him."

"Are you married?" David asked irrelevantly.

"Certainly not," she smiled. "If I were I wouldn't be a waitress and I wouldn't be here with you now."

"Want to be married?" David asked.

She looked at him and laughed. "But you don't know anything about me," she said. "I know all about your family for generations back. I was a gynecologist until the depression took away the curiosity that our leading citizens have to learn about or manufacture a noble family tree."

"I know as much about you as I'll ever know," David said, sticking to the point. "I have a big place. I get lonely. And I just found out I love you. Will you marry me?"

"Yes," the girl said after a long moment.

David Consol is no longer a most eligible bachelor. But his son is. His name is David Bellamy Consol. He is going to look like his mother.

THE END.

Fund Workers Told To Redouble Effort

Less than a million dollars short of their goal, 16,000 volunteer workers for the Boston Community Fund Campaign today were cheered as collections reached $3,729,631.

But all redoubled their efforts to reach the goal of $4,625,000 as Chairman Francis C. Gray warned:

"The hardest task of the whole campaign is still ahead of us. From now on each of us must redouble our efforts if we are to raise enough funds to keep our great human services running properly through this year."

The following individuals made contributions of $1000 or more: Mr. and Mrs. Archibald L. Kievin, $1600; Merrill Griswold, $1500; Thomas H. Shepard, $1200; Mrs. Charles S. Bird, Sr., Charles S. Bird, Mrs. Frederick H. Lovejoy, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Musgrave, $1000 each; anonymous, $3500; anonymous, $1173; Christian Science committee, $1706, total to date, $3101.

HELEN HAYES AIDS goal of $4,623,000.

The drive closes Tuesday.

Miss Helen Hayes, first lady of the American theater, shared honors with Mayor Tobin as guest speakers at today's Dutch treat report luncheon at the Boston City Club. Music was furnished by Ruby Newman's orchestra, through the courtesy of the Boston Musicians' Protective Ass'n.

Solicitors today visited 8000 students in the Revere public schools, explaining the work done in 175 social and health agencies supported by the fund and seeking nominal contributions of 10 cents per student.

Letters continued to pour into the campaign headquarters containing contributions from former recipients of aid. One was from a brother and sister who have already paid back much of the cost of their periodic treatment at Massachusetts Memorial Hospitals.

Their note, enclosing a donation of $20, read:

"Kindly use for shut-ins for what is needed most. Sincerely, and thanks for all kindnesses."

Neither has required treatment for the past two years.

GET WPA CASH

Another was from Samuel J. Rantin of Columbus avenue, Roxbury, an architect. In enclosing a contribution for $10, double what he gave last year, he wrote:

"I hope that the increased donation will help someone else in trouble."

Unusual contributions have marked the recent stream at donations at fund offices. One came from far off Guatemala, where John M. Cabot of the United States foreign service serving as secretary of the American legation in that city sent along $200.

Two-year-old Jimmy Philbrick of Dedham ave., Needham, was hauled to local headquarters in his go-cart by his mother. He walked to the desk and explained:

"If my daddy is giving to the Community Fund I want to give too, and here is the quarter I have saved—here goes."

Jimmy proudly returned to his waiting go-cart with a red feather adorning his bonnet.

Other contributions were:

$1500—Ludlow Manufacturing & Sales Co.
$1208—General Electric Co. and associate companies and employes, first report.
$1200—Stone & Webster, Inc., Stone& Webster Engineering Corp., Stone & Webster Service Corp.

Arthur Mann's imitation of Winchell is so good he can't top it . . . (He was on too long) . . . And now for a confession. We missed Warren Brown, the Chicago columnist and sports-writer . . . Warren is capable of "stealing" almost any show. But we had to leave . . .

TED WILLIAMS—with his last night's routine—could have held his own in the very fastest after-dinner company . . . His opening crack was a gem (and shows how fast the Sox rookie can really think) . . . Mel Webb had the party in a sympathetic uproar as he produced a long "stage-wait" by being utterly unable to locate the notes for his speech . . . The more Mel fumbled and stuttered, the more the crowd laughed—but as we say, in sympathy . . . So young Mr. Williams bounced to his feet when called upon directly after Mr. Webb presented him the Tim Murnane plaque and exclaimed: "Thank God, I ain't got no notes" . . . It was a howl.

The Kid's great charm and boyishness was working on his audience from start to finish . . . Once, when he seemed nervous, he glanced at a balcony box where "Red" Rolfe was sitting and remarked: "I've got that Rolfe on my mind" . . . . He had "built" for this one by an earlier reference to being nervous because there "were Yankees in the house" . . . Yes, sir, it was the Kid's night . . . Although if Joe Cronin ever needed any proof of how highly he is esteemed currently in local circles, he had it again last night

THE SPORTSMEN'S AND BOAT SHOW opens tomorrow at Mechanics Building . . . The best indication that a newspaperman gets of a show's prospects is the demand for tickets to the show by his particular public—pass-hunters in the main . . . Well, the demand for the Sportsmen's show has been no less than colossal . . . Like "Gone With the Wind" or the recent Ice Follies, the Fairbanks-Campbell exposition this year seems to be "in the air" . . . A varied and large assortment of trappers, animals, Indians, entertainers and gadgets has been procured by scouts who have been working all year in the interest of the show . . . Preview reports have it that the 1940 show is the best in the series.

Two New N. E. Champs Reign

Two New England champions were ushered from their thrones at the Garden before 4000 fans.

Ahle Abe Denner, 125, West End, technically kayoed Salvatore Bartolo, 125, East Boston, to annex the featherweight crown, while Henry Chmielewski, 139½, Poland, belted Babe Verila, 153, New Bedford, from his middleweight dais.

Bartolo, willing to continue festivities with Denner, was forced to stop in the eighth round due to a badly injured left ear in one of the bloodiest battles ever witnessed hereabouts.

Chmielewski looked nothing short of spectacular as he walloped Verila with everything but the ringposts. The colored New Bedford hiffer, proving a courageous warrior, took a terrific beating, but he managed to stand on wobbly legs to the end of the 12 rounds.

Billy Tordiglione, 144½, Boston, looked great in his second professional encounter, chilling the Zulu Kid, 150½, New Bedford, in one round.

In other bouts Johnny Skhor, 135, Baltimore, kayoed Henry Burak, 214, Hyde Park, two rounds, and Jackie Capparell, 154½, Roxbury, fought a six round draw with Eddie Ellis, 149½, Quincy.

Mellody, Junior Fight for Title

Honey Mellody, Charlestown, and Paul Junior, Lewiston, will clash for the N. E. lightweight championship in the 12-round feature of a Goodwin A. C. boxing show next Thursday night at the Garden.

Junior took the N. E. 135-pound crown from Mellody in a Maine fight and the Charlestown boy gets a chance to retain it next week.

PICS PLAY LEADERS TONIGHT

By SAM BROGNA

Sherbrooke's Red Raiders, one of Canada's leading amateur hockey teams and the same outfit that relieved the Olympics as pace-setters of the Senior Provincial League two weeks ago, open an important two-game series with the 'Pics at the Garden tonight.

A near capacity house is expected to see the locals make a determined bid to regain the leadership which they lost after running up a streak of nine consecutive wins.

It's a tough assignment as the Raiders invade the Garden this evening with a 5-point lead. But, their recent win over the Valleyfield Braves was by the default route and a protest is in the balance which, if the league officials up-hold the Valleyfield "screech," and call for a replay, the 'Pics' can slide into first place by sweeping the present series.

The O's hold the edge on the series to date with two wins against one defeat. The defeat was administered in Sherbrooke to the tune of 3 to 0 Thanksgiving Night but on their visit to the Hub the latter part of December, the Harrington crew set them back 3 to 2 and 3 to 1.

Notre Dame Star In B. A. A. 2-Mile

Boston's latest fair-haired lad of the spiked shoe brigade, Greg Rice of Notre Dame, was in the field of the two-mile in the B. A. A. track games in the Garden one week from Saturday night.

Rice, chubby speedster who whipped the great Don Lash in the K. of C. meet, intends to clean up the distance event in Boston for the year and hopes to get under nine minutes.

He has the ability to break Lash's 8:58 indoor record, particularly with Dezzy Wadsworth's games committee having the track rebuilt to make it faster.

The entire corners are being newly constructed, with the new planks laid parallel to the pole, instead of at right angles. The latter type corners have always been used in the Garden, but the runners say that the new style is considerably faster and thus the Unicorn meet may well produce many new marks.

Certainly the competition will be fast enough, for in each event the nation's stars have entered, including Johnny Quigley, great Manhattan frosh racer, in the Hollis 600; John Borican in the 1000; Glenn Cunningham in the Hunter Mile, and their co-stars.

Salem Pioneers Want Court Games

The Pioneers of Salem would like basketball games away from home with teams averaging 16 years. Sunday afternoon games preferable. Write Lawrence Tarlow, 24 Hazel st., Salem.

N. E. All-America Boxers Home

New England's W. R. Hearst All-America amateur boxers are home today after a trip to San Francisco, Cal., where the five members from this section failed to annex a National title.

Paul Conley of South Boston, William Daley of Roxbury, "Bud" Leonard of Taunton, Alfred Priest of Cambridge and George Beckles of Cambridge, arrived at the South Station last night with Assistant Trainer Fred Trozzi.

Conn to Fight N. Y. Winner

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (INS)—Both eager for a chance at Billy Conn's crown, Fred Apostoli of San Francisco and Mello Bettina of Beacon, N. Y., romped through light tapering-off drills in preparation for their light-heavyweight return fight in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Apostoli won after being floored thrice in early rounds and is a slim 6 to 5 choice in this return tussle.

Hence, with so close an initial tussle, the return encounter adds up to another five-star thriller. With the bout slated for the 15-canto route, Apostoli is a slight favorite.

Advance sales indicate a gate in the neighborhood of $35,000 with about 16,000 fans looking on, or double the figures of the first fight.

Nijinsky of Ice Returns for Silver Skates

Marion "Red" McCarthy, the Nijinsky of the Ice, who has just returned from astonishing European triumphs, has been added to the list of world famous fancy figure and trick skaters, whose acts will be interspersed among the speed races for the silver skates in the Silver Skates Derby, in the Boston Garden next Sunday afternoon.

The famous ice dancer, who studied the ballet under Madame La Gah, teacher of the great Pavlowa and under Anton Dolin of the Russian Ballet and the Ballet Russe, and figure skating under the famous Howard Nickelson, will give the act that took Europe by storm, "The Dance of the Wounded Warrior."

AUSTEN LAKE

Silver Skates Derby Best Bargain of Winter

THE LAST PEOPLE YOU WOULD SUSPECT of going to the nursery for their ideas are the he-men, promotional boosters of the Boston American and Sunday Advertiser. They are the gentry who stimulate the heart, liver and circulation of the twin journals by such entertaining oddities as the Hole-in-one tournament at Franklin Park, the All America boxing bouts at the B. & M.'s depot and the candle-pin orgy at various bowling alleys. These are usually adult affairs, but now, in fostering the annual Silver Skates carnival at the Garden on Sunday, they have taken a page from childhoods' literature which dates back to Mother Goose and Elsie Dinsmore.

AUSTEN LAKE

I never tire of the original story of the Silver Skates which can be found in any junior Christmas library in 10c paper back to de luxe editions up to $3.50. It is one of those patches-to-plenty themes which made such boyhood authors as Horatio Alger, Bert L. Standish and General Hugh Johnson rich on royalties in a time when Grandpa spent his kid-earnings on pulp serials and read them in a hayloft.

In the original edition, Hans, the hero, was one of those modest, poor but clean-breaking-in-the-clinches kids like the formula of Paul Bowser's wrestling manuscripts. As the male off-shoot of old Raff Brinker, the Haarlem (Holland and not Manhattan) cobbler, Hans copped the sterling scooters from a crowd of wealthy and therefore unpopular, rivals, including the pampered heir to the local banker's millions named Carl Schummel (Booooo!)

First Big Sports Promotion

THE REAL SILVER SKATES DERBY HAPPENED long ago, about the time that Lefty Grove was a tiny tyke, but might have been the model on which Pasadena's Rose Bowl was copied. Because a group of Haarlem real estate boosters had a section of swamp property on their hands which they wished to unload as residential lots of fancy figures. So they got the Haarlem Chamber of Commerce to offer a pair of silver skates as a grand prize in order to get free publicity in The Netherlands sport pages and attract a huge tourist stampede.

The big race was to be staged on a frozen canal outside Haarlem and next to the real estate subdivision. So the boosters hired a battery of high pressure publicity experts to pepper the papers with free copy and promotion luncheons with bottled goods for the writers. And presently the winter sports filberts were booking reservations from all over Holland and swarming in to give hotel keepers the heebies by heaving their empty flasks down the elevator shafts and hiccuping the night away through the hallways—like they do annually at the World Series and the Harvard-Yale boat races.

In the original Silver Skates story the Schummel kid had a banker-papa who, like George P. Marshall of the Washington Redskins, owned the town's wet wash business and had a thumb in every promotional pie in the town. So naturally Carl owned a pair of the latest Olympic model skates with patent heel clasps and never-slip toe plates, while Hans only had a couple of wood-and-bone castoffs handed down from the Brinker grandpa.

Beautiful Katie the Real Prize

CARL ALSO HAD A HEAVY LIST TO THE heart side for little Katie, the canal keeper's daughter who was quite the most luscious wren in Ward 1. Katie was a full busted, curvilinear frail with hay-colored braids and built beneath the neck like Sonja Henie, the world's most golden girl. So all the Haarlem lads were bowlegged about Katy and especially this Schummel cluck.

But—and here comes the payoff, Katie was pretty lower lip toward Carl, for all his fresh cash, and very pittipat about Hans, who looked something like Danno O'Mahony, the Irish farmboy when he first came over to wrestle, but no doubt without Danno's habit of snorting "Ee-yah," like a sea-cow.

Anyhoo, Carl and the rest of the vocational amateurs who had come to Haarlem for the race, under cash inducements, generous expense accounts and a week at the resort hotels on the cuff, gave Hans a big barnyard cheer with plenty of moos, cackles and whinnies. They didn't want the course cluttered with any such stiffs.

So just before the heat went on the Haarlem bookmakers, who operated openly in downtown hallways and were permitted to give the customers a pretty brutal tossing, sent their legmen running through the crowd to grab all the sucker bets they could, with breakage on the dame. There weren't any Dave Wilsons among the newspaper handicappers and hence no feed box specials on Hans. So when Hansel skittered home in his raggedy pants and worm-eaten scooters and paid off at 100 to 1, the victory was pretty unpopular with the shortenders who, when his number was posted, stormed the judge's stand and demanded to see the photo finish.

But Katie, who had laid $2 worth of honeymoon money on Hans' nose, was fit to wriggle out of her bustle, especially as U. S. ice palace and movie magnates showered Hans with immediate offers. And that, more or less, is the nursery origin of the Boston American and Advertiser's Silver Skates Derby on Sunday, the stark, naked drama of which will be covered by pre-eminent experts, plus two-page spreads of real life pictures. And it is why, too, the tousled rag-tag urchins in patched pantaloons always steal the show from the streamlined adults in their colored fleshings and skull-tight helmets. And also why the event is one of the best bargains at 55c tops and 25c bottoms on the winter sports' counter anywhere! Be seein' yuh!

'Better Than Sonja' Skates at Ice Derby

By OLYMPIAN

A few years ago, a blue eyed, blonde haired, ravishing little beauty from Oslo, Norway—her name was Erna Andersen—flitted like a butterfly wafted by gentle zephyrs on to the ice in the Olympic Stadium in Stockholm, Sweden. Before she had left it she had captivated the jury of international skating experts and so won the hearts of the critics that the Stockholm-Tidningen said:

"It was a revelation to see Erna glide over the ice at the stadium. Her tempo made her at times appear like a rocket shot from a cannon while at other intervals her movements seemed to have been inspired by the angels in Heaven."

Erna went to England where she took London by storm. There, after a wizardly exhibition in the Wembly Stadium, the critic of the London Daily Mirror wrote:

"Erna Andersen, a girl from Norway, appeared to dance 'La Cotcaracha' and electrified the assembly. I have never seen anything like it on ice. Erna can do on skates what the finest ballet dancer can do on her toes. She is a marvel of lightness, beauty and grace. She seems at times not to be on ice but on air, and the rythmic rapidity of her movements is incredible."

She came to America last summer—and thereby hangs a tale.

WARMS UP WALTER

A tale of Walter Winchell, "the man with three million readers," and as many listeners in over the air. Walter Winchell, who has traveled the Broadways of the world so long and so steadily that only the greatest of artists can keep him awake.

Walter was doing the World's Fair one hot evening last summer. He strolled in to the Sun Valley Ice Exhibit to get cooled off. Instead he was warmed up.

Beautiful Erna Andersen so warmed up the blase Winchell that Walter hurried to his typewriter and wrote his three million readers:

"Don't pass up Erna Andersen's ice skating at the Fair's Sun Valley . . . Norwegian, blonde, lovely."

And don't YOU pass up Erna Andersen's ice skating in the great Silver Skates Derby, in which incomparable Erna will make her Boston debut next Sunday afternoon.

BRING THE GANG

Come and bring the whole family.

Let 'em see incomparable Erna Andersen, whom her trainer and Sonja Henie's trainer—yes, Martin Stiksrod, famous Norwegian trainer, taught and trained them both—says is greater than Sonja.

What Erna greater than Sonja? Bring the family and let 'em judge for themselves.

Let 'em see the special added attraction, Harlon "Red" McCarthy, "The Nijinsky of the Ice" in his wonderful dance of the Wounded Warrior.

DAVE'S CODES CLICK

Wilson Has Three Straight Winners

Dave Wilson, New England's leading handicapper, batted for a cool .750 on his code selections yesterday when his first three choices all came home in front. His fourth code ran third.

Blue Lily, $3.50, won the initial stanza at Hialeah Park and Boss Hoss, $4.20, took the fourth event. Dodger made it three straight code bets to win when he won the fifth race to pay $5.00 straight.

Honey Seat, Dave's choice to win the first race at New Orleans, was an early scratch. Sun Apollo was Wilson's last code choice and ran third, returning $3.10 Dave had a win and a show parlay, the latter connecting for $5.40.

Dave Wilson's code horses appear ONLY in the Race Special Edition of the Boston Evening American and the key to the code may be found in Dave Wilson's Winners, racing booklet, on sale at your favorite newsdealer or newsstand.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 2—Linda Darnell, only 16 years of age, but already one of the great stars of the movies, greeted members of our party graciously when introduced on the Fox-20th Century lot by Jack Mulcahy. The latter is the son of Joseph Mulcahy, famous newspaper editor who went to Washington to help Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy when the latter was head of the Department of Justice.

Our party included Attorney Bernard J. Killion of Boston, who is in California on legal business, Ed Hayes of the Detroit Times, Sam Cohen, Mrs. Cohen and Mrs. Boston. Other than Hayes, we were all getting our first closeup of Hollywood.

Linda Darnell was accompanied by a teacher.

"Persons in the movies who are not graduates of high school must study four hours a day under proper supervision," said Mulcahy. "Linda is a movie natural. She comes from outside of Dallas, Texas, and has scored a sensational success in Hollywood."

We had lunch at the restaurant on the Fox-20th Century lot. It is a spacious restaurant, and can care for 500 persons.

Mulcahy pointed out Warner Baxter, Charles Grapewin, Victor Killian, and other stars who were gathered around the tables.

The extras, the stand-ins and the ordinary run of employes at Fox-20th Century rubbed elbows with the stars at lunch. It looked like one big happy family.

Later we returned to the lot where they were shooting the Linda Darnell picture.

"The story is from the book 'Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star,' said Mulcahy, but we cannot use the title as it is owned by Paramount. A bonus of $50 has been offered to anybody on the lot who can think up a title."

DONALD MEEK, who used to play in John Craig's stock company at the old Castle Square Theater in Boston years ago, is playing in the same picture with Linda Darnell. John Payne and Charlotte Greenwood are also in the picture. We saw them shooting a scene that included Miss Darnell, Meek and Miss Greenwood.

One is impressed by the number of camera men, electricians and other technical men necessary to get out a picture.

"The story behind the movies is a big one," said Mulcahy. "Every actress has a hairdresser and a wardrobe maid. It is often necessary to have as many as 14 dresses ready.

"There are also hairdressers for the stand-ins when they are with an actress. These stand-ins take the hard job of holding a position until the cameras are adjusted and then the star steps into their place. The stand-ins receive $7.50 a day.

"Most of the stars get guarantees that frequently run to $300,000 a year. A few are given a percentage of the gross receipts from a picture. Two to three per cent is considered large, and does not carry a guarantee with it."

MULCAHY GUIDED US TO another Fox-20th Century lot where they were shooting a picture starring Nancy Kelly, formerly of Lowell. Jon Hall is also appearing in this picture.

Nancy has exceptional charm and is considered one of the best actresses in Hollywood.

"Hollywood grinds out a picture in 32 days as a rule," said Mulcahy.

"We took 50 days for 'Old Chicago' because we always cannot control fire. We usually allow 42 days when we are shooting a picture in the desert, mountains or at the seashore. We allow the extra 10 days for holdups caused by unsatisfactory weather."

WE TOURED THE grounds of Fox-20th Century, and saw the special ice plant and skating arena built for Sonja Henie.

"We took the ski shots in Sonja's latest picture in the mountains and then cut them into the picture," said Mulcahy, "Sonja has been a big money maker in the movies."

We passed through villages and towns that had been built for various pictures. Some of them will be used later in other pictures.

There was a man-made lake with two big ships for water scenes, and also a submarine chaser.

The buildings, of course, are flimsy affairs, but they serve their purpose.

There are hundreds of doors representing various periods, and all kinds of other stage property. This huge supply of material is catalogued, and can be placed in position on short notice.

Giant trees, bushes and flowers are kept in readiness. There are special greenhouses where flowers used in the pictures are grown.

The construction work goes on day and night. Huge lights enable the workmen to keep busy through the night. Time is always important in Hollywood.

MULCAHY INTRODUCED me to Leo Houck, former Seattle lightweight who is now an assistant director. Leo told me he originally came from Salem, Mass., and that he has relatives in Salem and in Hingham.

"I got interested in the movies after I finished my career as a lightweight boxer," said Leo. "There is as much action in the movies as one gets in the ring."

Most of the new movies are being planned for distribution in North and South America. The war in Europe has reduced the income of most of the big studios by one third.

The movies believe that with better films they can increase their domestic business. The tremendous box office recipts of Gone With the Wind would seem to prove this can be done.

"Skiing is just starting to grow in New England!" exclaimed BILLY WEIR, well known pitcher for the Boston Bees, who acts in the capacity of ski expert for Horace Partridge's Sporting Goods Store during winter.

Interviewing this energetic enthusiast recently, he told me that he was about to embark on his fifth season as a southpaw hurler with the Bees, leaving for the South the latter part of this month . . . Billy is just selling skis now, and not attempting too much skiing himself so that he be all in one piece for the National Pastime . . .

A most versatile skier is this chap, and a graduate of the University of New Hampshire where he was a member of the ski team, starring in slalom, downhill racing and jumping. He has made a leap of over 115 feet! . . .

Weir learned to ski with Ed Blood, a school mate, who now coaches the ski team at his Alma Mater. Blood was one of the best, and a sensational jumper . . .

Billy was on the Athletic Staff at New Hampton Prep School in New Hampshire and started Winter Sports activities at this old institution. Their ski teams now rank high . . .

His favorite spot to ski is on Moose Mountain at Hanover, N. H., where he has enjoyed scores of thrilling runs. There is now a new tow operating from the foot of this mountain to the top . . .

The Weirs have a cabin in Bridgton, Maine, near Christmas Tree Inn . . . Billy says this is grand country, and the terrain offers all sorts of possibilities for development . . .

"I would like to see more controlled skiing," he goes on to add. "Every place should have a Ski Patrol, and more open slopes are needed . . . Everyone should go to a ski school, although more good skiers are springing up lately and they seem to know what it's all about . . . Steel edges on skis are not a luxury but a necessity . . . Let's all strive for safety!"

FUNDS FOR THE FINNS! Finnish relief will benefit from a novel and informal ski meet to be held on Cannon Mountain in Franconia Notch this Sunday from noon to one o'clock. The event to be run on the mile and one-half race course of the Cannon trial will be in the nature of a time trial: Times of two minutes and 50 seconds or better will qualify for the award of a miniature gold cannon; three minutes and 30 seconds or better will win the silver cannon; while contestants striving for a bronze cannon will be required to specify their own estimated time for the course and awards will be made only if the racer reaches the finish line within one minute of that time . . . Ten minutes will be the maximum time allowed . . .

The one dollar entrance fee will go to the New Hampshire sports committee for relief of the Finns! . . . Events will be open to both men and women and entries will be accepted Sunday at the aerial tramway station . . .

SKI CLUBS! Why not plan a dance or some such event now, and donate the proceeds to Finnish relief . . . Help the daring Finnish skiers!

SLALOM SOLILOQUIES: Just think! Five sanctioned ski meets are scheduled for this week-end! . . . These are the Winnipesaukee Ski Club's New Hampshire state slalom championships for men Sunday at Laconia-Gilford; the first annual New Hampshire women's slalom championship at Plymouth's Huckins Hill tomorrow; the Eastern Slope Ski Club invitation college slalom team matches Sunday; the Uncanoonuc Mountain Class C race Sunday; and the New Hampshire interscholastic meet sponsored by the Lebanon Outing Club Sunday . . .

At the Plymouth meet U. S. Olympic girl stars will vie for top honors . . . Expected starters are Betty Woolsey, "Sis" McKean, and the 15-year-old marvel from Stowe, Vt., Marilyn Shaw, as well as her sister, Barbara, who is 13! . . . AND WATCH DEBBIE BANKART!

GOOD SKIING HAS RETURNED to most of the ski country. Now is the time to buy, replace, repair and prepare for the weeks to come. We maintain a complete, practical line of ski clothing and equipment at all times.

DODGERS' BOSS KNOCKS LANDIS' RULING

EDDIE COLLINS
Williams for Him

AWARDS WELL DESERVED—Honors where honors were due fell on three Boston heroes at the Baseball Writers' dinner. Joe Cronin at left won the Paul Shannon Memorial Trophy for the outstanding feat of the year; Smiling Teddy Williams, center, earned the Tim Murnane Memorial Plaque and Eddie Miller, right, was given a plaque for being the greatest Boston rookie for 1939. Awards well deserved.

"GABBY" HARTNETT
To Run for Todd

LARRY MacPHAIL
Landis' Ears Must Be Red

FRANKIE FRISCH
Saying a Word for Boston

Blasting Judge Landis in prettied language so that the barbs almost passed unnoticed, Larry "The Red" MacPhail left little doubt as to his stand against the czar of baseball at the fourth annual Boston Baseball Writers' dinner at the Copley-Plaza.

Going so far as to call John Brown "a piker" for his raid on Harper's Ferry 81 years ago, MacPhail blasted Landis as the modern "great emancipator who freed the shackles from 91 Detroit baseball slaves and followed that up with a seven-point manifesto that wiped out nine farm systems and about 100 working agreements.

DOES MASTERFUL JOB

The assault on the judge was performed with the perfection of a master surgeon by the Brooklyn major domo. He apparently showed both sides of the farm question but left little doubt as to his stand when he said:

"I have telegrams from presidents of 20 minor leagues, and they express grave doubt as to whether they can operate unless the commissioner's bulletin is modified.

"In the matter of Judge Landis vs. the farm system, he sits as prosecutor, judge and jury—there is no appeal. Either he is dealing out justice or he is engaging in 'witch hunts' in which the innocent will burn with the guilty.

"With the ruling passed which means little to the judge, we are somewhat at sea, for owners cannot operate successfully when they do not know what the rules are or what they are going to be," gravely concluded the bold-thinking redhead.

This perfectly-delivered prepared manifesto took rank at a capacity dinner, but from the standpoint of the fans—there are thrills and laughs that held the stage as well as the MacPhail blast.

TEDDY COMES THROUGH

There was Teddy Williams decked out in a dress jacket and a collar three sizes too large to make certain he would be comfortable. Melville E. Webb, Jr., was given the honor of presenting Teddy with the Tim Murnane Memorial Plaque, but the veteran writer, much more at home behind a typewriter than a "mike," had trouble sorting his notes and was flustered badly—but not Teddy.

His first words were:

"Thank God, I ain't got no notes."

Teddy then went on to show his rise in the world by boasting:

"I started out with a sport shirt last year and now they got me in this" (meaning a dress jacket and a tie).

The "kid" is loaded with color and made a great hit but the reception of the night was tendered to Skipper Joe Cronin who received a tremendous ovation as the 800 rose to their feet as one to pay him tribute.

Joe was given the Paul Shannon Memorial Trophy for his feat of directing the Red Sox to five successive victories over the Yankees by Jack Malaney.

MILLER CHOKED UP

An "Anonymous Plaque" was given to Eddie Miller by George Carens as the outstanding rookie of the year, and Eddie in trying to express his opinion choked up a bit and could do little more than "Thanks, everybody."

The only sad touch to the affair was that Bob Quinn was confined to his home and unable to receive a surprise award in honor of his 50 years in baseball. John Quinn, his son, took the scroll with the names of the baseball writers inscribed from Joe Cashman.

We could go on and on telling about Eddie Collins, Gabby Hartnett, Frankie Frisch, Buddy Hassett, but perhaps it's best to call it quits with a few words about Warren Brown and Arthur Mann.

EVERYBODY GETS RIBBED

Brown wound up the night's program and took every speaker for a "ride." In hilarious fashion the famed Chicago Herald-American columnist ribbed and ripped reputations, ambitions and secrets to shreds. He virtually floored the gathering when he announced that Gabby Hartnett would take on an added duty in Chicago this summer "running for Todd."

Arthur Mann, who is the producer of the New York writers' annual dinner, spoke, sang and did everything but a tap dance. His parting crack was an answer to Mayor Tobin who wished the Red Sox a pennant soon.

Mann answered:

"I hope you're mayor that long."

All in all, it was a dinner that can be summed up as "terrific".

The Charlestown district of the Boys' Clubs of Boston will go after its tenth consecutive victory of the season tomorrow when it meets the fast Quincy Y. M. C. A. quintet at the Eben D. Jordan Memorial Gym.

The Granite City team is rated as potential champion of New England Y teams. The Charlestown team last Saturday handed the Worcester Boys' Club its first defeat in 14 games, but will be hard pressed to retain the spotless record against Quincy.

In the prelim the Boys' Club Shamrocks will meet the Goode Brothers of Randolph.

What the Fans Say:

'SHORE TOO HUNGRY'; 'BRUINS NEED PURGE'

The Boston American, inviting its readers to express their opinion of the Shore-Bruins matter, pro and con, herewith presents a few of the many letters already received. More will be printed tomorrow. Watch for yours.

HOCKEY'S WORST DEAL

88 Bow Street, Arlington,
January 30, 1940.

Bill Grimes
Boston American
5 Winthrop Square.
Dear Sir:

In my opinion Eddie Shore has just been handed the worst deal pulled off in the hockey world since the Thompson trade. When a man has done as much for a sport as Shore has for hockey, he deserves a better break. Had "Mr. Hockey" been dealt with without prejudice, he would now be manager of the Bruins instead of Cooney Weiland (a deserving and competent man and player, but second on the list, viewed from any angle).

The cases of Shore and Portland were errors. The sale or trade of Sands and Getliffe were two errors of the past. I believe the Bruins should be purged, but they are purging the wrong department. The Boston Garden displays a banner which reads "National Hockey League Champions, 1938-1939." Reflect. Since the Bruins captured and hung said banner, five men (and good men) have been dropped from the Bruins' roster, namely, Sands, Getliffe, Weiland, Shore and Portland. (The line forms behind the 8-ball, Pettinger.) Can the Bruins honestly call themselves champions now, when these five men all played important parts in winning this title? I think not.

So Ross wonders whether the customers pay to see Shore or the Bruins, does he? Well, you have heard the saying, Bill, "Don't smarten up a chump." The Bruins will play to a capacity house again—When they play the Amerks.

I remain, a rabid hockey fan upon whose enthusiasm the Sun is beginning to set.

BOB ATKINSON.

SHORE WANTED TOO MUCH

Boston Stock Exchange,
53 State Street,
Boston.

Dear Mr. Grimes:

I'm sorry to read that you are upholding Eddie Shore in this recent mess instead of considering the Bruins, Holdouts and troublemakers should not be glorified, and Shore certainly has a place in that class.

He only wants both ends and the middle, and gold-plated at that. I think that sports writers here are entitled to have both sides of the dispute aired, but now that it's over, why not help pull for the Bruins?

Yours truly,
R. S. BRAFF.

SHORE SAVED ROSS

118 Chestnut Ave.,
Jamaica Plain.
Jan. 30th, 1940.

Dear Bill Grimes.

I wonder how long the National Hockey League intends to insult the intelligence of the fans.

Two years ago the Chicago Blackhawks finished in the last qualifying position and went through the screwy playoff system to win the Stanley Cup. Hockey was the laughing stock of the sports world. Did the board of governors see the handwriting on the wall and make the playoffs more stringent? No one could have made a worse mess of it.

They came out and had seven teams play all year to eliminate one. Next season we may well expect to have all seven teams in the playoffs and have them play all season to eliminate a referee, the referee eliminated being the one who does the most competent job.

A year ago Tiny Thompson was sold down the river for having courage enough to address Art Ross other than Sir. If the Bruins had lost two or three games after selling Thompson, Ross would have been railroaded out of Boston. Who saved him? Why, the greatest man who ever laced on a skate. Eddie Shore played his heart out and it is common knowledge that he made twice as many stops as Frankie in many a game, and this is not meant to detract from Brimsek. Shore made Brimsek, not Ross.

In full appreciation of this, and of 13 years of the greatest hockey ever seen, Shore is given this rawest of raw deals. Have they, the Bruins management, lost all sense of reason! All the color in the Bruins now is in Red Hamill's hair.

Bring on the Olympics.

HERBERT J. BLUM.

So Long, Boston -:- Eddie Shore Bids Adieu

By BILL GRIMES

Do you know that at one time Eddie Shore aspired to be a Rudy Vallee?

A few weeks after the Bruins and the Tigers started training at the Arena in the fall of 1926, I went over to The Riviera with Eddie Powers, manager coach of the first Boston Canadian-American Hockey League team, to partake of a few snorts.

When we got off the elevator, an assortment of the sourest notes ever to emerge from a saxophone greeted us.

"Who tha'ell's that bird? Some-one from the Conservatory?" we asked.

"No, it's that guy Shore," replied Eddie Powers. "He thinks he's going to be a Rudy Vallee, but I'm telling you he won't live that long. He has the room next to mine, and I've got enough trouble on my mind trying to whip that bunch of amateurs into a pro club, without listening to him trying to play the scale and what he tells me is 'Roses That Bloom in Picardy.'"

Apparently Shore was trying to take a short cut to fame and fortune as a saxophonist, for he had turned his attention to popular music before mastering the scale. He was terrific.

MUSIC SPOILS TRIP

During that season, Shore took his saxophone on most of the road trips and drove all of the hotel guests crazy. And, he brought it to Ottawa in the spring when the Bruins played the Senators for the Stanley Cup.

His nocturnal saxophone renditions at the Chateau Laurier of "Blue Skies," "A Little Spanish Town" and his original masterpiece "Roses That Bloom in Picardy" are in all probability still echoing through the corridors of that hostelry. He sure spoiled that trip for the hockey scribes for his saxophone solos completely neutralized the effects of all the Scotch and soda they had consumed, which was plenty.

In those days, Eddie Shore might keep you awake by blowing into that saxophone but you'd never lose any sleeping listening to him talk. He was anything but a "barber" and the toughest athlete any scribe ever attempted to interview, and that goes for Paavo Nurmi, who was a Jean Baptiste Pusie by comparison.

I was in the Bruins' dressing room the day that Eddie Shore reported at the Arena for his first try out. And, I was in and out of the room during practise sessions, and before and after games for three years before Shore knew whether I was the Arena janitor, a "nigger number pool" writer or a hockey scribe.

He was not only a man of few words but he seldom fraternized even with his team mates. He'd report at the Arena for practise and games and then disappear.

CAUGHT OFF GUARD

About the third year he was with the club, Eddie was stretched out on the rubbing table one afternoon when I arrived to pay a visit to the "Old Master," Win Green. Eddie was reading a paper. The perspiration was pouring from "Greenie's" noble brow.

Although I realized that "Greenie" was pooped (he had been rubbing Shore for more than an hour) and wouldn't be of much help in case of a jam, I thought that I'd put a few questions to Mr. Shore, figuring that if the worst came to the worst, there'd be one good punch left in Win Green of Roxbury.

"Eddie," I queried meekly. "How long do you figure you'll last in this racket ploying through opponents, goal cages and fences at the rate you've been going since you joined the Bruins?"

"I don't know," snapped Shore. "And what's it to YOU?"

"Nothing," I managed to gulp, as I finshed the "I-O Ickstay" sign, which was the battle cry of the old "Forty Thieves" of Roxbury to "Greenie."

"Oh" came back Shore. "Well, I tell you. I'm a peaceful guy ordinarily but when they pick a fight with me I have to make it a twosome. The fans sort of expect me to and I don't like to disappoint them. Not that I ever pick and fights but when they force them on me, I don't turn tail and skate away."

During his hockey career, according to his own version, Shore has had more than 600 stitches taken in various parts of his anatomy. He has been cut over his eyes so many times that it is with the greatest of difficulty that the doctors force stitches through the scars. Being sewed-up by doctors doesn't concern Shore any more than it does to go into a barber shop for a hair cut.

EDDIE SHORE
Sweetest Notes Sour

SAW THE LIGHT

From his first year with the Bruins until the close of the 1932-33 season, Eddie Shore spent no less than 783 minutes in the various N. H. L. penalty boxes. In other words, over that span of seasons, he sat out the equivalent of 13 full games.

Then, he must have seen the handwriting on the wall, or got religion, for during the next six years and until he was traded to the Americans, Eddie spent only 241 minutes in jug.

After Shore had played two years in the N. H. L. the experts predicted that five seasons of major league hockey would wind up Eddie Shore's career. Little did they suspect that they were watching the super-man of hockey. The man who is still going after 14 seasons in the National Hockey League.

In El Smashup—Thousands of midtown workers were late for work today as elevated train smashed into trolley in Park st., injuring three passengers. Here, some of the unhurt passengers merrily make their way to the surface.

Crash

Three-car Lechmere-to-Lake-st. train crashes into Tremont st. trolley at Park st. today, shakes up 100, injures three. Photo above shows some of the passengers of the train smiling gayly over the misadventure . . . and happy over their own escape. At right, you see the derailed trolley and the train after the crash. Failure of signal lights was blamed by Motorman William A. Bushey of the Lake st. train. He said the light flashed green . . . but there was the emptied Tremont st. car in his right of way.
